EDISON FINDING NEW PLANTS FROM WHICH TO MAKE RUBBER

Several Shrubs Better Than Those Used in Early Experiments Discovered Recently.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 29.—Experiments in developments of rubber producing plants in the last few months have led to the discovery of several shrubs that are much higher in rubber content than plants used in previous experiments, Thomas A. Edison said yesterday at the home of Harvey A. Firestone, where he is a guest.

"I feel encouraged over the results of recent experiments," Edison said. "Of cours, we have a long way to go, but we are getting there."

The inventor and Mrs. Edison motored to Miami Beach from Fort Myers. Yesterday Edison toured points of interest in this section with Firestone. One of the first stops was made at the Firestone experimental rubber garden here. "Mr. Edison told me my rubber plants were old fashioned," Firestone said "He is going to give me some 'modern' ones to replace them."

CAPT. WILKINS GIVES ARCTIC PLANE TO EIELSON'S FATHER

By the Associated Press.

HATTON, N. D., March 29.—The airplane which he and the late Carl Ben Eielson used in establishing a base for their famous flight across the "top of the world" will be given by Sir George Hubert Wilkins, noted explorer, to Ole Eielson, the aviator's father.

Announcement of the gift was made here yesterday by Capt. Wilkins, when he flew here to lay a wreath on the grave of the famed North Dakota aviator, who was killed in an airplane crash in Siberia, Nov. 9, and buried with State honors here Wednesday.

The plane is not the one used in the Trans-Arctic flight, but it is the one employed most frequently by Wilkins and Eielson in preparing for their venture. Ole Eielson said he probably would give the plane to the State or to the Eielson Memorial Association to be placed in the museum.

TWO ROBBERS GET $15,000 FROM PARK SAVINGS BANK

Hiding in Depository at Clayton and De Mun, They Tie Watchman, Then Seize Four Employes, Looting Vault.

CASH, NEGOTIABLE SECURITIES STOLEN

Workers Covered With Revolvers by Masked Men—Investigation of Light at Midnight Failed to Disclose Anyone.

The Park Savings Trust Co., southeast corner of Clayton road ahd De Mun avenue, Richmond Heights, was robbed of approximately $15,000 before business hours this morning by two men who got into the place in some unexplained manner early today. They made prisoners of four early arriving bank employes and a neighborhood night watchman and forced one to open the vault, from which the money was stolen.

A quantity of negotiable securities, the nature and value of which has not been determined, also was taken.

Proceeding calmly, the robbers took charge of the first employe, at 6:40 o'clock, and the last one shortly before 8 o'clock, and escaped with their loot a few minutes later, shortly before other bank workers appeared. They held little conversation with their prisoners, but asserted that a third man was awaiting them outside. No indications were noticed by the employes of any one stationed outside, however.

Many Transferring to Trolleys.

The bank, which has a capital and surplus of $12,000 is a block west of the city limits, near the southwestern corner of Forest Park and directly east of St. Mary's Hospital. The City Limits car line passes it on De Mun avenue and the Market street car line is in Oakland avenue, a half block south. Many persons were transferring at the trolley intersection while the robbers were in the bank, and there was a heavy motor traffic in recently widened Clayton road.

Two private watchmen in the Hi-Pointe residential section, passing the bank last midnight on their way to a restaurant for coffee, noticed two lights burning in the rear portion of the bank, where ordinarily there are no lights. One of the watchmen is Pat McBride, one of whose employers is the bank. It is his duty to watch it from the outside during the night and to go inside early in the morning to see if all is well. He has a key to the corner door, the only public entrance.

Gale Austin, who patrols an adjoining beat, was the other watchman. He related today that McBride called attention to the lights and asked him to go inside. Austin entered with drawn revolver, while McBride turned out the lights. Austin, who remained in the outer lobby, declared he was positive McBride did not go to the basement nor stay inside longer than was required to extinguish the lights. McBride, however, asserted he made a thorough search of the main floor and basement at that time, and that he was certain no one was in hiding there then.

Janitor Covered With Revolver.

John Becker, the janitor, reached the bank at 6:40 o'clock, admitting himself with a key at the corner door. He walked across the rather narrow customers' lobby to the door to the employes' section. As he unlocked that door one of the robbers, who were in the employes' department, stepped in front of him and thrust a revolver in his face.

"Don't say a word, but sit down on that stairway," the robber commanded. Becker seated himself on the back stairs leading to the basement, where the bank vault is.

Becker was unable to describe the robbers. He could not see their faces, as one wore over his head a cloth sack containing holes for his eyes and nose, and the other's face was covered with a handkerchief and a cap pulled low.

"How many guns are there here?" one robber asked Becker.

"I don't know," the janitor replied.

"Well, we got that big shotgun," the robber rejoined.

The bank kept a shotgun in the employes' section for use against

MEETS MAN HE THOUGHT HE HAD KILLED IN PISTOL DUEL

Mexican, Put in Jail, Had Fired at Six Instead of 12 Paces and Fled.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, March 29.—Anastasio Trejo, when taken to the police station, met the man he thought he had just killed in a duel.

Trejo and Bruno Caballero had decided to settle an old quarrel with pistols. They went to a field just outside the city, squared off, back to back, and started 12 paces in either direction.

But Trejo, due to nervousness, he said, turned at the sixth pace and emptied his revolver at Caballero's back. The latter, frightened, fell in a faint. Trejo fled, thinking him dead.

Caballero was revived and Trejo captured. They made up their differences at the police station, but Trejo was placed in jail.

With 883,312 of a total of 1,029,220 votes counted, the position of those in favor of the proposal was considered hopeless, although the drys had several individual majorities. The figures when the count closed for the night were: Those opposed to extension, 498,976; those in favor of it, 384,389. Under the law the prohibitionists must obtain a three-fifths majority.

COMMONS VOTES $50,000,000 FOR BRITISH UNEMPLOYMENT

Margaret Bondfield, Minister of Labor Says Loan for Fund Is Inevitable.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 29.—A resolution submitted by Margaret Bondfield, Minister of Labor, authorizing the unemployment fund to borrow another $50,000,000 in view of an abnormal increase in unemployment, was approved by the House of Commons yesterday.

Winston Churchill, former Conservative Chancellor of the Exchequer, accused the Government of pursuing the same policy Labor had attacked in the Conservative Government. Miss Bondfield confessed she disliked the principle of borrowing for the fund, but said present circumstances made it inevitable.

VIENNA, March 29.—Contrary to their dying wish the bodies of Dr. Ernst Watzl, Cleveland chemist and inventor, and his bigamous bride, Mrs. Mary MacGranahan, were not cremated together. At the last minute an uncle of Mary MacGranahan received a cable from her mother, Mrs. Eva Hovarth of Cleveland, saying that cremation was offensive to her religious sentiments.

The body of Mrs. MacGranahan was buried unostentatiously last evening in the Central Cemetery here, the hospital authorities said today. That of Dr. Watzl was cremated yesterday.

$1,300,000 LOSS ESTIMATED ON YOUNG BROS. PFD.

Figures on Total Investors Are Out of Pocket by Bankruptcy Await Completion of Audit.

$351 FOR GROCERIES IN A SINGLE MONTH

On This Claim Personal Property of Firm's Vice President in County Is Attached.

Outstanding preferred stock of the collapsed brokerage firm of W. H. Young & Bros., Inc., with home offices in the Central National Bank Building and 65 branch offices in 15 states, was estimated today at $1,300,000 by one of the lawyers in the case.

The stock is now considered worthless, inasmuch as whatever value it once had was based on the supposition that Young Bros. was a going concern, more than earning the 12 per cent dividends paid on the stock. Stocks sold to the public in the Midwest Holding Co., the Industrial Holding Corporation and other subsidiaries are of doubtful value. In addition, there have been numerous complaints from customers who bought stocks of independent companies, but failed to obtain delivery.

Postoffice Inspector Reuter and Assistant United States Attorney [illegible] called on the receiver today. They declined to discuss their mission, but it is understood they are investigating to learn whether there was fraudulent misuse of the mails in the stock selling.

Audit Not Yet Completed.

With few tangible assets discovered by the receivers for Young Bros. and the Midwest and Industrial companies, guesses as to the total losses to the public range from $1,500,000 to $2,500,000. However, definite figures will not be available until the completion of the audit of the brokerage firm's books.

Young Bros. had an authorized capitalization of $2,000,000 preferred and $100,000 common stock. The brothers Young—William H., Fred C. and Harold A.—owned the common stock and controlled the company.

During 1928 William and Fred, president and vice president, respectively, drew about $40,000 each in dividends on their common stock, and Harold, in charge of the Kansas City office, about $10,000. The firm's gross business was reported as $1,886,000. The business for 1929 is understood to have been double the 1928 total, with one month alone showing sales of $1,000,000. However, since last November, business had declined sharply.

$351 Grocery Bill for Month.

Fred Young owed a grocery bill of $351 to the Kopman Grocery Co., Richmond Heights, which sought to protect itself yesterday by attaching an Oriental rug, a radio and other furnishings at his $125,000 residence on Clayton road, west of Ballas road. The bill was for this month. Fred Young was a generous host, entertaining 20 or 40 guests over week ends. He made large purchases of fine steaks, mineral waters and ginger ale.

Two Cadillac limousines, owned by the company and used by William and Fred Young, have been turned over to the receiver, Francis Emmett Williams, through the co-operation of William Baer, attorney for the brothers.

William and Fred Young did not appear in Court of Criminal Correction today when $5000 fugitive from justice bonds which they had furnished were dismissed by Judge Butler as ordered by Circuit Attorney Miller. The bonds were furnished last Saturday when the brothers were taken in custody at the request of the Prosecuting Attorney of Barton County, where they are charged with making illegal sales of preferred stock in violation of the blue sky law. Later the brothers appeared at Laman, Barton County, and gave $500 bonds No charges are pending against the brothers in St. Louis, but Attorney Baer promised the Circuit Attorney to produce them "on two hours' notice" if their presence is desired.

HUGE OKLAHOMA GUSHER STILL IS OUT OF CONTROL

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., March 29.—Gusher No. 1 Mary Sudick, in the Oklahoma City oil field, today continued to run wild, inundating the countryside and spouting thousands of gallons of oil high into the air. A companion well, which had been out of control since Tuesday, was shut in late yesterday.

The No. 1 Mary Sudick, owned by the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil and the Foster Petroleum companies, blew in Wednesday, a mammoth gasser, with an estimated daily flow of 200,000,000 cubic feet. There was scarcely enough oil to color the escaping gas. Gradually the oil flow increased, until the well "drilled itself in" with what oil men estimated at from 2000 to 3000 barrels of oil an hour, one of the largest wells of its kind in the world.

Workmen in oil drenched slickers went carefully about the task of installing a master-gate on the well, for the work was extremely hazardous. Tremendous pressure, estimated by engineers at 2000 pounds to the square inch, must be overcome without the least spark or heat from friction, to evade the danger of firing the well.

While it was impossible to gauge the well, oil men pronounced it the largest producer of "sweet" oil in the world.

BOY KILLED IN STOLEN AUTO

Sioux City Youth Is Shot by Detective.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., March 29.—Leonard Barnholtz, 18-year-old high school student and son of a watchman here, was shot and killed early today by Detective Leon Miller when the driver of a stolen car in which young Barnholtz was riding refused to stop on command of the officer.

Miller was going off duty when the car, which he recognized as one reported stolen last night, passed him. He called to the driver to halt, but his command was unheeded. Miller fired twice and one of the bullets struck Barnholtz. Harry Deal, who was driving the car, and two high school girls in his company, were arrested. Deal, police said, admitted he stole the automobile but insisted the other members of the party knew nothing about it.

CHURCH EXECUTIVE CENSURED; TOOK PAY FROM MOVIES

Committee of Federal Council Reports Dr. Charles MacFarland Committed Great Error.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, announced last night that Dr. Charles S. MacFarland had submitted his resignation as general secretary of the council "with a view to relieving" the council's Policy Committee of embarrassment over services rendered by Dr. MacFarland to the motion picture industry.

Bishop McConnell's statement was made to the council's Administrative Committee at a meeting yesterday. The resignation was dated March 5.

The Policy Committee reported, Bishop McConnell said, that "while accepting fully Dr. MacFarland's good faith in his course and in his explanation of that course, in its opinion Dr. MacFarland had committed a very great error in taking pay for services rendered the motion picture producers while acting as a salaried officer of the Federal Council."

Criticism of Council.

Bishop McConnell spoke of "the criticism of some weeks ago, which appeared both in the religious and secular press concerning the relation of the Federal Council to the motion picture industry."

"Certain charges," he said, "were urged against particular persons employed by the Federal Council. These charges were openly met and statements were made to the public which threw upon the questions involved all the light available to the officers of the Federal Council itself.

"After these cases had been disposed of, Dr. Charles S. MacFarland, general secretary of the Federal Council, of his own accord came to me, as president of the council, and told me that for a period of some months preceding July, 1923, he had rendered certain services to the motion picture group in the way of reviewing films which the producers were thinking of putting before the public. Dr. MacFarland feels that his viewing films and passing judgment upon them constituted a real service to the producers and to the public. For that service he states that he received through a period of possibly 18 months a moderate compensation."

Acting on the recommendation of the policy committee, the administrative committee of the council decided "that the resignation of Dr. MacFarland be received by the administrative committee, transmitted to a sub-committee of the administrative committee to be appointed for the purpose—this sub-committee to report back to the administrative committee at such time as the administrative committee itself may deem best."

In a statement issued after the meeting of the administrative com-

STATE ORDER TO LIQUIDATE REALTY LOANS NOT OBEYED

Depository With $234,000 Capital Had $135,000 Tied Up on Security to Which Finance Commissioner Cantley Objected.

SUIT IS FILED FOR RECEIVERSHIP

Directors Blame Detrimental Rumors — Say With Orderly Liquidation Depositors Should Be Paid in Full.

The Union-Easton Trust Co., neighborhood bank at 5325 Easton avenue, with capital and surplus of $234,000 and deposits of $816,000 in 6000 accounts was closed today at the order of State Finance Commisioner Cantley for "bad loans and poor management."

Directors of the bank issued the following statement which conflicts with Cantley's:

"Owing to rumors detrimental to the trust company, resulting in heavy withdrawals, the Union-Easton Trust Co. has been placed in the hands of the Commissioner of Finance for the protection of the depositors. It is the belief of of board that with proper and orderly liquidation the depositors will be paid in full."

Cantley said he instructed the directors of the bank to close when they notified him last night that the bank could not comply with an order to replace $135,000 in real estate loans to which the department's examiners objected after an examination late last month. The questioned loans, he said, were not worthless, but were "slow paper" and not up to the department's standard. The directors had been ordered to make the substitution by tonight.

Brothers Hold Chief Offices.

Arthur F. C. Blase, president of the Provident Loan and Investment institution at 1009 Locust street, with a capital of $250,000, is president of the closed bank, and his brother, Oliver Blase, secretary of the Provident company, is vice president and treasurer of the bank. Louis J. Becker, United States Collector of Internal Revenue, is a member of the Board of Directors.

J. B. Norris, an examiner of the State Finance Department, took charge of the bank at 8 a. m. The 15 employes reported as usual but the officers did not appear and could not be reached when this edition went to press. During the morning depositors came to the bank, read the examiner's notice on the door and lingered in groups on the sidewalk.

Receivership Suit Filed.

Shortly before noon a receivership suit was filed against the trust company in Circuit Court by Mrs. Marie A. Mehl, operator of the Cabanne Hotel, 5545 Cabanne avenue, who stated that she had assigned the hotel property to the bank last year in connection with a re-financing scheme which was not consummated.

Policemen guarded the door of the bank but there was no disorder. The depositors, most of them residents or tradesmen of the neighborhood, discussed their predicament quietly. Over the pillared stone entrance and above the examiner's notice was an electric sign, "The Door of Opportunity."

It was understood that the financial difficulties of the institution were due in part to the failure of the Union-Easton neighborhood to produce sufficient business and the fact that too much of the bank's money was in real estate. Employes attributed the difficulties to the various causes, chief among them the expense of maintaining the building and the failure to get sufficient deposits.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE FAR APART ON SECURITY

Naval Conference Circles Hear Negotiations on Pact Thus Far Have Met With Failure — Deadlock Reported.

BRIAND LUNCHES WITH HENDERSON

Principles to Guide U. S. Participation in Proposed Consultative Treaty Said to Have Hoover's Approval.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 29.—Naval conference circles heard persistent reports this morning that negotiations between the French and British to work out a scheme for a suggested security pact have met failure thus far. One report had it that a complete deadlock had been reached.

French circles were reticent in discussing the reports, but said there undoubtedly was a certain amount of pessimism in some quarters.

Foreign Minister Briand and Rene Massigli of the French delegation had lunch with Arthur Henderson, British Foreign Secretary, and it was assumed that the situation came up for discussion.

Indications that the experts were still struggling with the security proposal in an effort to reach some kind of an agreement were shown by the fact that Sir Robert Van Sittart and other British Foreign Office officials met with Massigli and other French advisers to continue discussions.

The task of these experts is to find some formula within the orbit of the covenant of the League of Nations which will satisfy the French demand for security and at the same time insure that Great Britain will not be involved in further military commitments.

The principles which the American delegation have shaped to guide possible United States participation in a suggested consultative agreement for the benefit of France were said today on the highest authority to have been fully approved by President Hoover.

This statement was in answer to press reports from the Washington correspondents of English newspapers to the effect that the President was unfavorable to the American naval delegation's open minded attitude towards a consultative pact.

The work of shaping the delegation's consultative policy is said to have been almost entirely in the hands of Senator Robinson and Ambassadors Morrow and Gibson. The results of the work of these three during the week were cabled to President Hoover for his approval.

Ambassador Morrow today continued the American delegation's activity of trying to assist in settlement of the Franco-Italian parity dispute. Morrow consulted with the French and Italian advisors separately. Later Foreign Minister Grandi had luncheon with Senator Robinson, who also is assisting in the Franco-Italian problem.

Members of all the delegations last night attended the Lord Chancellor's reception in the House of Lords in their honor. Afterward Prime Minister MacDonald went to Chequers and Secretary of State Stimson to Stanmore for the week-end.

Reijiro Wakatsuki is understood to have told MacDonald that he did not expect a reply from Tokio on the tentative agreement on cruisers with the United States until the latter part of next week, probably not before Friday's plenary session.

House Naval Bill Held Up, Pending London Parley's Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Intentions of House administration leaders to withhold action on the more than $300,000,000 annual naval appropriation bill for an additional six weeks in the hope that the London naval conference will reach agreement on tonnage, if not a reduction in naval armaments, was disclosed today by Congressman French (Rep.), Idaho. French is chairman of the House Appropriations Naval Subcommittee. He expects that any tangible agreement reached by the conference would result in a saving of approximately $50,000,000 in naval expenditures in the next fiscal year. Other savings would be effected in subsequent fiscal years.

The naval appropriations bill usually calls for an outlay of more than $320,000,000 annually. Some have placed the figure of this year's bill at about $400,000,000.

The measure must provide funds for carrying out the 15-cruiser construction program, while the modernization of three battleships also has been contemplated. An agreement at London might have a decided effect upon these appropriations.

Only two of the new cruisers have been laid down so far. Three more are to be laid down before July 1, under the plan of the administration.

French asserted that the American people should have "utmost sympathy with our delegation."

"The prize of reduction of naval armaments is worth working for," he Idahoan said. "The cost to the American people of a three months' session of the conference will be less than one-tenth of one per cent of the annual naval appropriations bill, or stated in another way, considerably less than the operation of one battleship for the same period of time.

"Were the outcome of the conference to be definite agreement in all categories without reduction of tonnage but with no increase the conference would be worth while; were the result to be definite agreement in all categories and reduction in tonnage that is reasonably possible, the result would be triumphant gain for every nation involved.

"Last year the naval burdens of the five great powers cost approximately one billion dollars. This expenditure should be cut in two. Such a program would mean not only reduction of naval burdens but greater guarantee of world security."

No difference Between Hoover and Delegates Cotton Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Acting Secretary Cotton of the State Department said today there were no differences of view between President Hoover and the American Naval Delegation in London.

Cotton issued the following statement:

"There are no differences of view between the President and our delegation in London. The delegation has always had and now has, his unqualified support and authority.

The delegation is in London patiently to explore every suggestion made and every possibility that leads to the great purpose of the conference—that is, reduction and limitation of naval arms and the preservation of the peace of the world.

"It is the high hope that a plan for so doing can be evolved which will meet the approval of the American people and will be consonant with our traditional policies and ideals."

Cotton's statement was issued to newspaper men after an early conference with President Hoover in the executive offices to which it was undrstood the President summoned him.

SAYS BRITAIN DOESN'T WANT U. S. TO ENTER LEAGUE NOW

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 29.—The Yale conference on international relations was told here last night that Great Britain regards American entrance into the League of Nations as being "positively undesirable because it would be unnatural." The speaker was Lord Eustace Percy, British diplomat and author.

Lord Percy named four points of friction between the two countries. The first, he said, was that "Wilson's failure to get America into the league left the impression in American minds that it is a prime object of British policy to involve the United States in political and economic commitments in the continent of Europe." He described this point of misunderstanding as "imaginary."

"It has become increasingly recognized that official participation by the United States in the work of the league, would, under existing circumstances, be of little practical value, because American interests and politics are so far removed from those of Europe," he said.

"The next point, the question of the British debt to the United States, was described as "an almost subconscious cause of resentment in England against American policy" Lord Percy said there was no thought, however, in English minds of asking for a reduction. The third point of friction the speaker listed as naval competition. His fourth point was the rights of belligerent and neutrals at sea.

Marchand Embraces Son in Court

UNION-EASTON TRUST IS CLOSED BY STATE FOR MISMANAGEMENT

sources and liabilities at $1,150,166.79. Resources include loans and discounts on personal and collateral security, $295,147.11; loans on real estate securities, $296,932.19; Government and industrial bonds, $177,722.51; and cash on hand and due from other banks, $63,210.65.

The deposits of $816,394.18 are divided into individual checking accounts, $465,962.84; savings deposits, $259,716.13, and participating certificates secured by real estate mortgages, $61,323. Capital is listed at $200,000, surplus $20,000 and undivided profits $14,605.28.

Organized in 1925.

The bank building, a two-story stone-front structure, was built in 1925 when the bank was organized by Blase and his associates. It is carried on the bank's balance sheet as of Dec. 31 at $123,972, and its furniture and fixtures at $51,182.84.

G. A. Hanke, former president of the City Club, who is the secretary of the bank according to records, appeared shortly after 9 o'clock and spent a few minutes at his desk. He refused to discuss the bank's affairs with reporters but said that he had resigned two weeks ago. He did not know that the bank had closed, he said, until he called to get some personal papers he had overlooked when he left.

The Associated Bankers of St. Louis, an organization composed of 34 neighborhood banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System, anticipated the closing by publishing a list of its members in newspapers today. The Union-Easton Trust Co. is not a member of the Associated Bankers, the Federal Reserve or the Clearing House. Its officers are understood to have conferred with representatfives of other outlying banks recently in an attempt to work out a plan of preventing the collapse.

Most of Capital Put Into Building.

The Board of Education, according to the Dec. 31 balance sheet, had a deposit of $123,000 in the bank. Examiner Norris stated today that this sum had been reduced by substantial withdrawals and that the bank had deposited $160,000 in negotiable bonds with the board as security.

President Blase, a lawyer, who had organized the Provident Loan and Investment Institution in 1921, led the movement for a neighborhood bank at Union and Easton during 1924, subscribing for 1700 shares of stock.

Most of the remaining stock was sold to business men and residents of the community, who were also the principal customers of the bank. The balance sheet indicates that 70 per cent of the bank's capital and surplus was invested in the fixtures and building, the first floor of which was occupied by the bank and the second floor rented out.

Blase, who is 46 years old, lives at 5377 North Kingshighway. Oliver Blase, his brother and associate in both his business ventures, lives at 3503 Manola avenue, Pine Lawn.

Cantley refused to permit inspection of the examiner's report at this time, stating that the department's rules required that a 10-day period be allowed for examiners to determine the conditions of the bank. Examiner Norris said it would take about that time to make an inventory of the bank's assets.

Officers of the bank besides the Blase brothers and Secretary Hanke, are William A. Koeneman, vice president, and Frank X. Moore, assistant secretary and treasurer. The Board of Directors consists of the officers, Collector Becker, H. W. Felter, William Hendrickson, E. D. Houlle, A. F. Moberly and A. J. Spring.

Basis of Insolvency Charge.

Mrs. Mehl's receivership suit, assigned to Circuit Judge Hogan's court for hearing on April 10, says that she is informed that the trust company is not in sound financial condition but insolvent and that a receivership is necessary to protect her claim.

Her petition alleges that last June President Blase evolved a scheme to re-finance her property under an arrangement whereby the bank would assume one-third interest in the property. Title to the property, valued at $90,000 and mortgaged for $50,000, the petition alleges, was transferred in blank to the trust company. Subsequently, Mrs. Mehl alleges, a Cabanne Hotel Co. was organized but no stock was issued to her and when she asked questions at the bank she was told it was "the bank's business."

MARCHAND DIDN'T CARE IF WIFE DIED, WITNESS ASSERTS

Defendant's Aunt Closes State's Case Against Lila Jimerson, Accused in Killing of Buffalo Woman.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 29.—Ann Snow, withered little Cayuga Indian woman who didn't like Henri Marchand, the artist, because he "bothered" Lila Jimerson, her niece, testified in court here yesterday that she had heard the artist says he did not care whether or not his wife lived out her days. The wife, Clothilde Marchand, was killed on March 6.

Nancy Bowen, 66-year-old Cayuga who, the State alleges, was incited to commit the crime by Lila Jimerson, now on trial for murder. The State asserts Lila told Nancy that Mrs. Marchand was a "white witch" who had invoked magic to bring illness and misfortune on Nancy.

Marchand has testifed to an intimacy with Lila and the State is trying to prove that Lila plotted to dispose of Mrs. Marchand so that she would win the affections of the artist.

Lila's Aunt Testifies.

Ann Snow muttered her testimony in the Cayuga tongue and an Indian interpreter told the jury what she had said. Her testimony was not clear.

She said that Henri Marchand had gone on one of his many week-end visits to the Cattaragus reservation and the Jimerson home on the banks of Burning Springs Creek. His wife was with him on this particular trip, but at the moment of the conversation concerning her had left the room. There also was present "another party," the interpreter thought an Indian woman, Ada Wheeler.

The court stenographer's record of Ann's subsequent testimony follows:

"Only one time he says when he and his wife came there to the house they stopped and he came to the house and he mentioned something about that he didn't care if his wife didn't live and that there was another party there at the time heard this. He didn't care if his wife was out of the way. Then he saw the other party and went out of the way."

With this testimony the State rested.

Marchand Cross-Examined.

Marchand again appeared on the stand yesterday to undergo the questioning of John V. Maloney of defense counsel. He told once more of his relations with the defendant only as a "professional necessity," by which he said he meant the plan he used to overcome the native disinclination of Indian women to pose for his museum figures.

He had lied about love to Lila to bend her to his will. The defense attorneys accused him of moulding the Indian woman's will as he had moulded her figure and the French sculptor mildly agreed to the statement.

One other element in his relations with Lila, he said, was compassion, pity for a woman with tuberculosis, whose physicians had told her she would live, even in the woodland air of the reservation, not more than a year.

Marchand's Son on Stand.

Henri Marchand Jr., 12 years old, was called to the stand, leaving his pad of court room sketches with his sister. The boy told of returning from school to find his mother dead at the foot of the stairs with an overturned radio on top of her body.

Court was adjourned until Monday morning. Lila is ready to testify if her attorneys so advise.

Marchand today denied the statement by Ann Snow that he had said he did not care if his wife didn't live. The sculptor, on the witness stand, staunchly maintained he held a deep affection for his wife, although he had not been true to her. He referred to Mrs. Marchand as "my little pal."

HOOVER TO RECALL MARINES FROM HAITI GRADUALLY

Bases His Policy on Report of Commission, Which Advised Against Immediate Withdrawal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—President Hoover believes he can best fulfill American obligations in Haiti by carrying out the recommendations of the Forbes commission that Marines be gradually withdrawn from the island republic and diplomatic relations instituted.

Accordingly, he has accepted the commission's report as the basic policy of his administration in dealing with Haitian affairs. This became known late yesterday simultaneously with the publication of the report.

Under its terms, the United States will recognize Eugene Roy as President and his provisional government which will succeed that of President Borno on May 15. When deputies and Senators have been elected, and they in turn have named a President, that official and his government will be recognized.

The commission advised against immediate withdrawal of the Marines. Withdrawal, it said, should be gradual and in accordance with the arrangements to be made by the two governments, with the advice of the commandant of the Haitian garde.

The new minister to Haiti to succeed Major General John H. Russell, American High Commissioner, under the recommendations, is to be made responsible for "an increasingly rapid Haitianization" of the island government for the purpose of having experienced Haitians in every department ready to take full charge at the expiration of the existing treaty in 1936.

The military commission is to be replaced by diplomatic relations at expiration of Russell's tour of duty—limited by the pleasure of the President or at the expiraton of the treaty.

Intervention Urged.

The negotiation of agreements providing for "less intervention in Haitian domestic affairs" also would be one of the responsibilities of the new Minister.

The commission recommended that "an effort be made to secure Americans who will agree to continue employment" in Haitian Government services "so that upon the expiration of the treaty a force of American doctors, engineers, and police officers will be vailable for continued assistance to the Haitian Government, should it then desire it."

The Commission said that it was "under no delusions as to what may happen in Haiti after the convocation of the elected legislative assembly and, to a greater extent after the complete withdrawal" of the United States forces.

Educated Group Small.

"The commission is not convinced," the report added, "that the foundations for democratic and representative Government are now broad enough in Haiti. The educated public opinion and literary minority are so small that any government formed in these circumstances is liable to become an oligarchy. The literate few too often look to public office as a means of livelihood. Until the basis of political structures is broadened by education—a matter of years—the Government must necessarily be more or less unstable and in constant danger from political upheavals."

Economic Proposals.

The commission recommended that the detail of naval and marine officers for all Haitian services be made for a minimum of four years.

Regarding the economic situation, the commission recommended the Haitian Government be urged to appropriate for maintenance of existing roads before constructing new ones; and that only roads most urgently needed to develop settled regions under cultivation be undertaken until the economic depression has passed.

Furthermore, the report urged that the American Government interpose no objection to a moderate reduction of customs duties, internal revenue taxes, especially those imposed upon alcohol and tobacco, or to a reduction or elimination of the export tax on coffee if the Treasury condition warrants.

Employment by the Haitian Government of one American adviser in each administrative department, with the American Government maintaining them as an act of grace, was recommended.

It was recommended that "in retaining offices now in the Haitian service, or selecting new Americans for employment therein, the utmost care be taken that only those free from strong racial antipathies should be preferred."

FACIST TEACHERS TO GET PREFERENCE IN SCHOOLS

Grand Council, After Hearing Mussolini, Issues Draft of Decree Favoring Members of Party.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

Copyright, 1930, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

ROME, March 29.—The rulers of Fascist Italy, who have been engaged in a prolonged controversy with the Vatican as to whether Church or State should be entrusted with the education of youth, moved today to assure a preponderance of Fascist teachers in Italian schools.

The second spring esssion of the Fascist Grand Council was devoted entirely to discussing "ulterior measures for fascisticizing the schools."

After speeches by Premier Mussolini, President of the Senate Federzoni, Minister of Justice Rocco, Minister of Air Balbo, and Augusto Turati, secretary of the party, the council unanimously decided to issue a draft of decrees for attaining that end.

In accordance with these decrees the teaching profession in Italy is to be made more attractive by giving higher salaries to suitable men and especially to assistant professors in colleges. The authority of directors of colleges over teaching staffs is also to be strengthened. Not only will they preside at the unions of their teachers and assistants, but they and their staffs henceforth will be chosen from among loyal Fascists. Preference will be given among candidates for a directorship or professionship to those who have been members of the Fascist party for at least six years. This will be extended to teachers in the elementary, secondary and technical schools.

The Fascist press hails the council's decisions as salutary. Professors have been becoming scarcer every year, editorials say, and anti-Fascist teachers have linked political insinuations with slack discipline.

Storm Turns Back Big Planes.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 29.—Two 32-passenger Fokker airplanes, which left Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., yesterday, bound for California, and landed here, made an ineffectual effort to resume their long flight today. They left the Albany airport this forenoon, but returned within an hour, having run into a snowstorm. In making a landing on the return, one of the ships broke a propeller. Repairs will hold the plane here until tomorrow afternoon, when both will take the air again and attempt to resume their westward flight.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR TWO MEN IN TIRE SHOP MURDER

Former Convict and Youth Identified in the Killing of Clarence A. Sweeny in Holdup.

BOTH DENY CHARGE AND OFFER ALIBIS

Pair Arrested After Automobile Seen Circling the Neighborhood of the Crime Is Traced.

Warrants charging murder in the first degree were issued today by the Circuit Attorney's office against two men who have been arrested and identified, according to police, as participants in the holdup and murder of Clarence A. Sweeny, secretary of the Sweeny Tire Co., 1501 North Grand boulevard, last March 9.

The prisoners, who make denials, are Harry Johnson, 27 years old, 216 South Fourth street, who has served a prison term for robbery, and George Faheen, 18, 2804 South Fourth street, who has been picked up 68 times for investigation, but has served only a workhouse term, according to Bertillon records.

Killed Resisting Holdup.

Sweeny, his father, John F. Sweeny, and a Negro tire changer, Charles Jamerson, were held up in the tire shop by three armed men. After looting the cash register the robbers were leaving when young Sweeny grabbed one by the neck and attempted to drag him back. A companion then shot Sweeny through the head. The robbers escaped, although pursued by Sweeny's prize winning great dane, Brownye, and were presumed to have used an automobile.

One of the robbers was described as a foreigner. A tan Buick coupe occupied by several men had been seen circling the block prior to the holdup. Detectives recalled that Faheen, a Syrian, was known to drive such a car, the property of his cousin, Sarkis Thomas. The car was seized in a public garage at 609 South Broadway, where Thomas had left it March 18.

Elder Sweeny Not Sure.

Faheen and Johnson, with whom he associated, were arrested. They were viewed by the elder Sweeny, who said Faheen resembled one of the robbers, but he was not positive. Another witness positively identified both Faheen and Johnson, according to police, identifying Faheen as the robber who stood in a doorway as a lookout and Johnson as the robber who shot young Sweeny.

Both prisoners offered alibis.

Johnson was released from the Missouri Penitentiary last April after serving seven years of a 12-year term for a $62 holdup of a United Cigar store at Ninth and Locust streets, in 1922.

MOVE IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN TO FORCE BUSSES TO OPERATE

Resolution Referred to Committee Without Comment; Strike in Sixteenth Day.

A resolution calling on the Peoples Motorbus Co. to resume operations or have its operating permit revoked by the Board of Public Service was introduced in the Board of Aldermen yesterday and referred to the Resolutions Committee without comment. The resolution was introduced by Alderman Chauncey J. Kreuger, representing residents of the Lindenwood district, who, they say, have been greatly inconvenienced by the strike of employes of the bus company.

The strike entered the sixteenth day today with no busses in operation. William B. Fitzgerald, first international vice president of the Amalgamated Association of Electric Railway Employes and Motorcoach operators, returned from Detroit, Mich., to take charge of the strike. Fitzgerald, who arranged the recent conference between Richard W. Meade, president of the company, and strike leaders, said on his arrival: "I'm astonished that the strike has not been settled. The fundamentals, which include the right of the men to organize, were practically agreed upon before the conferences started, and the action of the company in demanding a three-year agreement with no change in wages is surprising." Fitzgerald said he would confer with Oliver T. Remmers, attorney for the union, before deciding on further action.

"Owl" service will be started by service cars to the Lindenwood district, beginning tonight. Machines will be operated at 15-minute intervals to midnight, and one each hour thereafter until 6:30 a. m.

Death of William Klausmeyer Apparently Was Caused by Drowning.

The body of William Klausmeyer, 50 years old, a farmer, residing near Redman and Bellefontaine roads, St. Louis County, was found in a pond on the farm of a neighbor, Gus Sudmeier, early today. Death apparently was due to drowning. The body was fully dressed.

Klausmeyer, who was unmarried and lived at the home of a brother, left the home about 8 p. m. yesterday and did not return. Search for him this morning resulted in finding of his body. The brother said he knew of no reason for suicide.

RED TOP CABS CUT FARES

10 Cents a Half Mile Lowest Rate in City.

A fare reduction from 10 cents a two-fifth mile to 10 cents a half mile for taxicabs operated by Red Top Cabs, Inc., 4959 Delmar boulevard, was announced last night.

This makes the Red Top rate the lowest of the large companies, as the rate of the General Cab Co. is 10 cents for the first two-fifths mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter. Yellow cabs operate at a straight 10-cent rate for each two-fifths mile. All make a 10-cent "flag pull" charge.

DANIELS CALLS ON RASKOB TO RESIGN

Insists Also He Should Pay Debt Due to Frills of Last Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 29.—The Raleigh News and Observer in an article written by former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, publisher of the paper, says "John J. Raskob was more interested in destroying prohibition than in the Democratic party, and owes it to the party to pay the debt he created against it and resign his connection with the National Democratic Executive Committee."

"The Democratic party," Daniels continues, "demands, or the best portion of it does, that the chairman of the commitee shall have no alliances that are hurtful to the common good, or that will work injury to party success. As long as he (Raskob) remains, millions of voters will believe the Democratic party is wet."

Raskob, Daniels says, gave money to the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment and made "advances to the Democratic party."

No campaign, Daniels writes "had such costly and unnecessary frills as that of 1928. Mr. Raskob wished them. He adopted them. He should pay for them."

THOUGHT TO HAVE TRACED $10,800 RANSOM MONEY

Kansas City Police Get No Aid From Victim, Millionaire Druggist.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 29.—The silence reported imposed by kidnaper-extortionists on Michael H. Katz, millionaire Kansas City druggist, today remained unbroken. Police, proceeding without assistance from the druggist, whom they think, paid $100,000 to his abductors two weeks ago, have succeeded in tracing $10,800 of the alleged ransom money. Of the amount they said $9500 had passed through channels of the Merchants Bank and $1300 had been paid to a salesman for an automobile. The money was traced through serial numbers recorded before the currency left the Federal Reserve Bank at the time Katz supposedly was held by kidnapers.

Investigators found that a man who purchased an automobile from Jake Nigro, paying for it with 13 $100 bills and $50 in change. Nigro said he sold the machine, a coupe, to "Morris Schultz." Late yesterday the car was identified as one wrecked near St. Charles, Mo.

PANA BANK FAILS TO OPEN

PANA, Ill., March 29.—Despite the statements of officers of the Pana National Bank, who, after closing hours yesterday, informed depositors and many miners in the bank with their pay slips that they could not honor any more demands with cash at that time, but expected to have funds this morning, the bank remained closed today.

A national bank examiner arrived today and will begin an examination at once. The bank closed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon after a heavy withdrawal by depositors following the suicide of Second Vice President Arnold J. Johnson, one of the heaviest stockholders, who shot himself with a shotgun in the basement of his home. Members of Johnson's family accredited his act to despondency over ill health. Officers of the bank have said it is solvent and they hope to reopen it.

SAGER'S GRAND JURY TESTIMONY PRESENTED

In It He Admitted Giving Gratuities to Federal Court Bailiffs.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Grand jury testimony, in which Arthur N. Sager, one of the Utah lead case defense lawyers on trial for jury bribery, admitted giving gratuities to court bailiffs, was read into the records in Federal Court yesterday.

Sager, former Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, with Joseph Shalleck, and Edward Reynolds, is charged with paying John Cruz, a juror, to hold out for acquittal in the Utah lead mail fraud case which ended in a mistrial. Cruz has admitted accepting a bribe.

In his testimony before the grand jury Sager said that Charles Beadon, one of the eight defendants in the mail fraud case, had given him $200 to use as "expense money" during the trial.

He said it was customary in the Federal building for attorneys to tip bailiffs and court attendants because their "friendly attitude was often helpful." He said that he paid out $65 or $70 in gratuities during the Utah lead trial, $5 of which he gave to a bailiff to take Cruz home the day that the juror was taken ill.

In return for the gratuities, Sager said, he expected to get "any legitimate information" and also pick up any corridor gossip on the deliberation of the jury. He said he stopped tipping the court attendants when "certain rumors" started during the trial.

Explaining his statement that he gave a bailiff $5, Sager told the grand jury, "I gave the bailiff $5 to take that por devil home and get him some soup, and I didn't think any more about it."

Former United States Senator George H. Williams of Missouri, and A. C. Van Winkle, an attorney, of Louisville, Ky., testified as character witnesses for Sager. Williams said he had known him for 20 years. Williams said he had regarded Sager as a fine lawyer and had never heard any adverse criticism of him. Van Winkle said Sager was a member of his law firm while a resident of Louisville and knew nothing detrimental to his character, either personally or professionally.

mittee, Dr. MacFarland said:

"For a time I rendered personal service to the Motion Picture Producers' Association in an advisory capacity up to about nine or 10 months ago, when I withdrew. I asked for release on the completion of the organization of the Federal Council's commission on motion pictures because I felt that the Federal Council's commission should have a survey of the whole situation made by the department of research and that no officers of the Federal Council should be in any relationship whatever with a body to be included in the survey.

"I had orginally accepted the position of counsellor at a time when the relations between the Motion Picture Producers' Association and the church bodies were cordial and I secured my release before, and entirely independently of, the attacks which followed.

"My relation was entirely confined to study and recommendations regarding religious films and those implicating religion, with special reference to the former caricaturing of the Protestant clergy, reflections on religion and religious workers and similar problems, my service being entirely that of criticism, counsel and advice."

WARDEN PREDICTS NORMAL ROUTINE IN PRISON MONDAY

Rudolph Expects That Conditions Will Permit General Operations at That Time.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 29.—Resumption of routine operations of the Missouri Penitentiary, disrupted by disorders that began with a food protest demonstration Wednesday and continued Thursday with shop strikes and a short-lived mutiny in the main dining hall, will not be made until Monday or Tuesday, Warden Leslie Rudolph said today.

Meantime, all but about 700 of the 3800 convicts will be kept in their cells while guards continue to segregate known trouble-makers and suspected agitators.

While prison officials believe the revolt has been crushed, they will face another test when general operation of the eight prison factories is resumed and the convicts are out of their cells and in the shops.

Guards have been singling out convicts with bad records, who will be placed in close confinement. The investigation thus far, however, has not disclosed who the men were who directed the outbreak.

To Keep "Tough Ones" Locked Up.

Warden Rudolph has announced a change in disciplinary policies from a lenient one of "Sunday school methods" to one of rigid enforcement of rules and curtailment of privileges and use of clubs at the first show of surliness or insubordination. Rudolph said he thought 85 per cent of the convicts wanted to obey the rules and be well behaved.

"We will try to keep the tough ones locked up so they can't start anything," he added.

About 500 convicts were working today in the chair factory and in one of the departments of the pants factory. The other six factories are closed.

Industrial Superintendent John I. Burnett has estimated the prison will suffer a loss of about $25,000 through closing down of the shops for several days.

About 75 convicts have been placed in close confinement, in a weeding out of the men sent to the punishment hall or locked in their own cells Thursday. The population of I hall, known as the "hard-boiled cell hall," where the trouble makers are being placed, will be increased as the check-up continues.

Hospital records showed 77 convicts were clubbed by guards during the disorders Thursday. Eight of these convicts were kept in the hospital and the others were returned to their cells.

700 Allowed Recreation.

The two shops that are operating shut down this noon, in keeping with the usual Saturday schedule, and the 500 men working in these shops and 200 or 300 other men assigned to duty outside the shops, who did not participate in the disorders, were allowed to go to the prison recreation ground for two hours this afternoon. The remainder of the 3800 prisoners will remain in cells. About 240 other convicts are outside the prison, at the three farms. The woman's department, with 98 women convicts, is on one of the farms.

The convicts are being taken from the cells to the two dining halls and fed, in small relays, with extra guards posted about the dining halls.

The new rule that convicts cannot talk during meals is being enforced.

A provisional machine gun company, made up from two St. Louis companies of the 138th Infantry, Missouri National Guard, will remain on duty at the prison for several days. The company comprises 38 enlisted men and two officers and is equipped with four heavy type machine guns. The Penal Board yesterday ordered a half dozen new repeating shotguns, to be added to the supply of arms in the prison arsenal.

PLANE INSPECTOR INJURED

L. P. Ahlers' Leg Broken in Forced Landing.

L. P. Ahlers, an inspector for the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co., suffered a fractured leg when a cabin monoplane in which he was flying with Frank Kern, test pilot, was damaged in a forced landing near Florissant as they were returning to Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Kern and Ahlers had taken the plane up to test a new propeller when trouble developed in the controls. Following a brief consultation it was decided that Kern should make a forced landing rather than attempt to reach the field. The ship struck rough ground, smashing the landing gear and one wing. Ahlers' leg was broken when it became caught beneath a seat. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Kern escaped injury.

Roomers Routed by Fire.

Roomers were routed from the second and third floors at 2945 Olive street at 1:30 a. m. today when fire broke out in a third floor closet. Damage was estimated at $1200 to building and $300 to contents. The first floor of the three-story brick structure is occupied by a restaurant.

FIREWATER FOR 'BALL OF FIRE' IN THROAT GETS A COP FIRED

Patrolman Henry H. Underberg Dismissed for Drinking and Neglect of Duty.

A "ball of fire" which rose in his throat after nightfall and could be quenched only by whisky cost Patrolman Henry H. Underberg his job yesterday. Following a trial before the Board of Police Commissioners, he was dismissed from the force charged with neglect of duty and drinking intoxicating liquor.

Underberg, who was attached to North Market Street Station, admitted he had been drinking whisky in a soft drink parlor at 2701 North Nineteenth street, but had failed to arrest the bartender. He said drinks were supplied to him free of charge at the place and that no drinks were sold there in his presence.

Asked if he had consulted the police doctor about the "ball of fire," he replied he had and that the doctor had said whisky "wouldn't hurt any." The throat condition had prevailed ever since he left the army, he said. He had been on the force six years. He is 31 years old, married and lives at 5238 Thrush avenue.

Former Member of Follies Suffered Breakdown After Dieting to Reduce.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Suffering from the effects of a nervous breakdown which followed her efforts to reduce her weight, Allyn King, 29 years old, who for four years was in the Ziegfeld Follies attempted suicide today by jumping from a window of her bedroom on the fifth floor of an apartment house. She landed in a rear areaway with both legs and both arms broken. It is thought that her skull is fractured.

ROBBERS GET $15,000 FROM PARK SAVINGS BANK, TIE WATCHMAN

robbers. It was gone after the robbery.

Watchman McBride circled the exterior of the bank about 7 o'clock to see that the doors and windows all were locked. About 7:25 o'clock, following his routine, he entered it. The first thing he noticed was Becker's key in the door to the employes' room. Stepping to that door, McBride felt a revolver pushed against his ribs, while the other robber, standing on the stairs near Becker, covered him with a weapon.

McBride was promptly trussed with light cord and picture wire and confined in a small customer's booth in the safe deposit department in the basement.

Shortly before 8 o'clock Louis Schatzle, a teller, arrived, followed in a few moments by Miss Frances Buxton, a bookkeeper. The robbers met them at the employes' door and locked them in a lavatory in the basement.

Forced to Open Vault.

Assistant Cashier G. H. Dudeck was the next to reach the bank and be accosted at the inner door. He was forced at the point of revolvers to open the combination to the basement vault, where the money was kept. As soon as he did so he and Becker were shoved into the lavatory with Schatzle and Miss Buxton. The robbers locked the door to that room and tied the knob to the door of the booth where McBride lay.

Quickly then the robbers got the money and negotiable securities and departed. The prisoners heard the next employe arrive and cried for help. They were released and telephoned for Cashier J. F. Greenway. In order to carry on the morning's business the bank borrowed cash from a Maplewood depository.

Soon after it was established around the corner from the present location, at Yale and Oakland avenues, Richmond Heights, the bank was robbed twice in 1923. A short time later it was moved to the Clayton and DeMun corner occupying a store room on the first floor of a three-story building, the upper floors of which have apartments.

Care was taken to protect the bank in its new quarters against invasion by robbers during the business day. The customers' lobby is separated completely from the employes' and tellers' section, by a partition, the lower part of which is made of steel and the upper part of a bullet-proof metal screening, with bullet-proof glass in the windows of the tellers' cages. There is a customers' stairway from the lobby to the safe deposit department in the basement.

On Nov. 6, 1923, robbers obtained $2200 in the first holdup of this bank and on the following Dec. 26 it was robbed of about $600. Cashier Greenway, then an assistant cashier, was one of those held up on both previous occasions.

Today's loss was insured.

PHYSICIAN WHO SET OUT FOR A WALK IS MISSING

Dr. Edward Jarvis May Have Been Taken Ill, His Host Thinks.

Police have been asked to search for Dr. Edward Jarvis, an elderly physician, 6 feet 3 inches tall, who failed to return to his home, 3819 Shenandoah avenue, after going out at 3 a. m. last Sunday for a walk, his nightly custom because of insomnia caused by stomach disease.

Dr. G. W. McElwee said Dr. Jarvis had been staying at his home for two weeks, and was in such a condition that he might have collapsed on the street. He had been despondent. For several days he had talked about going to a hospital. Since most of his money remained in his room, Dr. McElwee thinks he had expected to return.

STATION PLAZA NAMED FOR LOUIS P. ALOE

Aldermen Pass Ordinance to Honor Memory of Leader in Bond Campaign.

Aloe Plaza is to be the official name of the projected open place bounded by Eighteenth, Twentieth, Market and Chestnut streets, formerly called Union Station Plaza, under an ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen yesterday. The name will honor the late Louis P. Aloe, president of the Board of Aldermen when the $87,372,500 issue of 1923 was passed.

He was chairman of the special committee of the board that drafted the bond ordinance and was a leader in the campaign to pass the issue. The bond issue provided $2,600,000 for this plaza, which faces Union Station.

The city recently has acquired much of the property in the two blocks, and officials are seeking means of financing the improvement of the place. The ordinance goes before Mayor Miller for signature.

Another ordinance passed authorizes construction of a traffic cutoff at the southwest corner of Wells and Hodiament avenues, in the Wellston district, to eliminate a jog. Six years ago the City Plan Commission estimated the damage to property there at $22,000.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the Municipal Theater Association to use the Municipal Theater in Forest Park for its annual season of outdoor productions from May 15 to Aug. 30. Another resolution expressed sympathy for Alderman Otto in the death of his wife, Mrs. Anna Otto, a member of the Republican City Committee.

JURY TRIAL IS SOUGHT BY 'WIDOW' OF ERLANGER

Court Withholds Decision Until Her Counsel Prepares Bill of Particulars.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Accompanied by such bitter exchanges by opposing counsel that Surrogate James A. Foley several times protested, an application was submitted in Surrogate's Court yesterday for a jury trial to determine whether Charlotte Fiscal was the common law wife of Abraham L. Erlanger, theater magnate who died March 7. Foley reserved decision on the matter and also on the submission of an affidavit by the woman's attorney, Max D. Steuer, in which she said that on Nov. 3, 1927, in Atlantic City N. J., Erlanger told her that if there was any doubt about her status of wife, he wished to removed it at once. Thereupon, the affidavit said, she put her arms around him and said, "You are my husband," and he replied, "You are my wife."

This was three weeks after the drafting of the will in which Erlanger said he was unmarried. Miss Fiscal was not mentioned in it and she now is seeking a widow's share in the estimated $75,000,000 estate.

"If that marriage actually took place in New Jersey as she claims," Steuer said, "she, of course, became the wife of Abraham L. Erlanger and accordingly became his widow on his demise; and this relationship revoked the will."

Counsel for the beneficiaries protested that this was an attempt to make "a bilateral marriage out of a unilateral one." Steuer contends that Miss Fiscal lived with Erlanger as his wife from 1920 until his death. Counsel for the beneficiaries demanded a bill of particulars relating to the time, place and circumstances of the alleged marriage. Steuer received until April 2 to reply.

A Workingman's View.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTICE one of the prohibition leaders in Washington made the remark the other day that only the middle and rich classes were interested in the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and that was solely for their own gratification; that the American workingman did not favor repeal. It is just such remarks as that that cause the red blood of the working class to boil. I wonder if he thinks we do not know of the untold millions of dollars that the cities, counties, states and Federal Government spend in a senseless, futile attempt to enforce a vicious law that has not, will not and cannot be enforced.

I wonder if he thinks we do not know of the many millions of dollars that the Government loses every year in liquor tax. I wonder if he thinks we do not know of the graft and corruption the law has caused in official circles. I wonder if he thinks we do not know of the flood of poisonous and indifferent liquor that floods the whole country. I wonder if he thinks we do not know that everything we buy is higher because of prohibition.

I wonder if he thinks we do not know that the Federal Courts are so clogged with petty liquor cases that they could not function properly. I wonder if he thinks the working class absolute fools, incapable of clear reasoning. Yes, the workingman is deeply interested, but he is interested in the repeal of the most hellish piece of legislation ever written in the statute books of the United States, the eighteenth amendment.

Mr. Schroeder and the W. C. T. U.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE recommendation by the local W. C. T. U. to have Mr. Schroeder removed from the Board of Education is going a little too far. It is high time the country should throw off such plagues as this organization, which would reduce the entire country to a joyless, drab and desolate puritanical community. It has never been either temperate or Christian.

We Meant to Say "Credulity."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ENJOYING your able and brilliant editorials as I do, it was somewhat of a shock to read in last night's paper (March 25) that the news of the 600 per cent increase in alcoholic deaths reported by the insurance company had taxed your "credibility."

Certainly, it will be a sorry day for St. Louis and your host of readers everywhere when your credibility becomes impaired—we would like to be able to say that if you see it in the Post-Dispatch, it's true.

As for your credulity, may it long continue to be the highly sensitized faculty that it has proved itself to be in the past, particularly in respect to the machinations of those who would delude the public for their own ends.

How to Reduce Cost of Crime.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE been a reader of your paper for the past 15 years. You published a statement in regard to the cost of crime—$500,000,000 a year. The cost of crime could greatly be reduced by a very simple matter by adjusting one law which was never the will of the people. Any person who has common horse sense can plainly see it has caused more fraud, theft, murder, separation of man and wife through unemployment than any law ever enacted in the United States. No one has respect for such a law, only reformed booze hounds and religious fanatics. The sooner the people object and stand for their rights against such laws, especially the working people, the sooner the cost of crime will be reduced.

Prohibition is a disgrace to the country. Why go back to slavery? Yours for the freedom of the people,

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. LOUIS' need to revise its niggardly treatment of unfortunate children has been pointed out by Circuit Judge Rosskopf, in calling attention to the shocking fact that the work of the Juvenile Court, of which he is Judge, has been handicapped by last year's short-sighted appropriation for the Board of Children's Guardians.

Surely the $28,000 increase asked for is modest, as Judge Rosskopf says, in the knowledge that the stingy provision for the board last year forced it to deny aid to many widows with children, and to cut in half for two months its already inadequate aid to others. It will not do for St. Louis to fall further short of its duty in a direction where its negligence already has excited national comment. The $3,000,000 excess of city budgets over city revenues certainly calls for economy, but this budget for widows and children is no decent place to economize. D.

OUR INDUSTRIAL SURPLUS.

What shall we do about our industrial surplus?

We are trying to handle our surplus of agricultural products, which has hung like a stone on the neck of prosperity, through the Farm Board, but we have a tougher problem to solve in disposing of our surplus of industrial products, which we are trying with might and main to increase by raising the tariff barriers to trade. The tariff bill passed by the Senate tops off our Chinese wall.

Congress is proceeding on the theory that our rapidly growing industries can thrive by shutting off imports and squeezing robber profits out of the home market. The theory is obsolete, and the policy will inevitably lead to disaster. It was workable when the country was new, with vast undeveloped resources, and our industrial system was half grown. Free trade between the states supplied an ample market for our industrial products. The small surplus could be dumped abroad at low prices.

Now this condition has changed and is still changing. Our industrial system has forged ahead in productive capacity until it is too big for the home market. We are exhausting our domestic resources and glutting our domestic market. We must look to the world market to consume our industrial commodities. We must trade with the world if our huge industrial machine is to be kept busy.

Through the development of machines the productivity of labor has enormously increased and the cost of production has decreased. The capacity of our industrial system is now 40 per cent greater than the requirements of the home market. We can manufacture a surplus of 40 per cent which must be disposed of somewhere. We are only in the beginning, however, of the machine age, having yet need for human labor to supplement the machine. We are entering the automatic age, in which perfected machines of high efficiency will dispense with the aid of human hands. A machine now in operation in the plant of a leading electrical company makes electric light bulbs automatically without a human hand except to feed it with material. It needs only a wiper and caretaker. It supplants 400 employes and greatly increases production. A machine in a leading automobile plant makes complete automobile rod wheels without human labor, except to feed it. It increases production. Industrial engineers are working for and expecting extraordinary results in automatic production.

We may look forward to diminishing employment for wage earners, decreasing cost and increasing production. We may expect increasing industrial surpluses. What shall we do about them?

We don't need high protective tariffs. The efficiency of our machines puts us beyond competition.

Our exports are now decreasing. The Department of Commerce reports a reduction of exports for the eight months to March this year of $300,000,000 under the previous period. For the same period imports declined only $39,000,000. Foreign producers evidently cut prices desperately to pass the tariff barriers and we need to import raw materials for industry.

Some far-seeing manufacturers, anticipating the inevitable, are building plants in foreign countries, but that, while enabling them to flourish, impoverishes us. They are jumping over our tariff wall and taking our industry and trade outside.

We are facing a situation wholly different from that of a few decades ago. We have prospered on free trade between the states, but to maintain prosperity we must have free trade with world markets. We must trade with the world, which means an exchange of commodities with other nations.

Yet with this necessity for increasing foreign trade facing us, Congress is preparing to shut off what foreign trade we have. Both Senate and House have agreed to raise our tariff wall higher and will soon confer upon the question of the exact height of the wall. They are planning for deeper depression and more unemployment. They turn from the counsels of wisdom and obey the dictates of greed.

Congress is planning to let Grundy and his conscienceless crew of tariff bandits not only rob home consumers, but throttle foreign trade. After their feast, the deluge.

CAPONE AS A LEGAL PROBLEM.

Long a lawless problem, Al Capone is by way of becoming a legal problem. Capone maintains a moated grange in Florida which he calls home and to which he planned to retire when Chicago police instructed him to get out of that town. But Gov. Carlton of Florida regards Capone as an undesirable citizen and has ordered his arrest as soon as he sets foot on Florida soil. Capone's attorneys, however, have procured an injunction from a Federal Court restraining Florida Sheriffs from molesting him. To this the Governor replies that, injunction or no injunction, the arrest order stands. Here's a dilemma of many facets. If a Florida Sheriff arrests Capone, will the officer be in contempt of the Federal Court? Will the Governor of Florida be in the same chancery? Would a Federal Court commit the arresting officer to jail, also the Governor, for taking this professional gunman into custody? If it failed to do so, how would the dignity, prestige and authority of the court be rated? Though hypothetical now any one of those questions may at any moment pop into actual embarrassment. Pending adjudication Scarface Al, we suppose, joins the distinguished and elect who believe devoutly in government by injunction.

BOYHOOD AMBITIONS.

Prof. H. D. Kitson of Columbia University announces that the type of life work chosen in childhood becomes the individual's career oftener than an unscientific layman would think. He reached this conclusion by strolling through the parks, interviewing all the nursemaids and policemen he saw and tabulating his findings. The professor was startled to learn that 14 per cent of the policemen and 12 per cent of the nurses had realized early ambitions.

Far be it from us to quarrel with the scientific method, but had the professor interviewed a group of lawyers or doctors, we daresay he would have found that 14 per cent, probably more, of them in boyhood longed to carry a nightstick. And what would that prove? It surely would not demonstrate that the way to become a professional man is to dream in youth of a career on the force. It simply would show what everyone already knows—that at one time or another many boys want to be policemen, for officers of the law are the most gorgeous creatures in boyhood's visible world. Later they yearn in rapid succession to be detectives, soldiers, sailors, movie comedians, firemen, trapeze performers, auto racers, aviators, sea-going radio operators, explorers and millionaires.

The professor, however, has made one discovery. He has found that 14 per cent of the policemen and 12 per cent of the nursemaids are born, not made. The natural-born officers are the ones who win the medals and the promotions, and the congenital nursemaids are those who become perfect jewels and then inexplicably marry the officer on the beat.

WHY CONFESSIONS ARE DOUBTED.

The Daily Oklahoman of Oklahoma City, perturbed by the inconsistencies of the courts, shoots a question at Mr. Hoover's Crime Commission. Why, it wants to know, do so many accused persons confess crimes, then turn right around and plead not guilty, whereupon the jury, like as not, acquits them, although the signed confession is presented in open court? "Why anyone should confess that he has committed a felony if he is actually innocent," the puzzled Oklahoman says in wonderment, "it is impossible to understand."

The answer to that question is not far to seek. Divers little devices, such as sandbags, baseball bats, rubber hose, blackjacks, brass knucks, nightsticks and blacksnake whips, figure in the explanation. These are unofficial prompters for bashful and uncommunicative prisoners, the process of their application being known as the "third degree." Juries sometimes hear of these extra-legal aids to prosecution, and occasionally suspect their use even if not told about it. In such event, a signed, sealed and sworn confession, chock full of corroborative detail, is not worth the paper it is written on.

This remarkable attitude of juries was commented on in St. Louis last month when the Police Board went on record against the third degree. Juries were loath to convict, the board said, where brutality was charged or suspected. There is no need to bother the overworked Crime Commission about this strange behavior of juries. Rather, it is a matter for each city and county to work out for itself. If abuse of suspects goes on, confessions will continue to be taken with a grain of salt, and queer confessions some of them will be. If fair treatment is used, juries will no longer puzzle the Oklahoman and other lookers-on with their doubts about statements of defendants.

IF CONGRESS NAMED THE PLANET.

Should the final choice of a name, preferably Latin, to fit the newly-found planet be left to the vote of Congress, it would be easy to pick the winning cognomen. The Grundy bloc, of course, would see to it that the star was named "Vox Populi." Like the new luminary, this mellow Latin term represents a vague something entirely undetectable to the majority's unaided faculties. Both are embodiments in empty space, millions of miles away from anywhere, having no influence whatever on the merry carnival of logrolling. Mythological names are preferred, so this should fill the bill nicely. It would honor a faint, far-off entity to which some such formal and inexpensive tribute might be paid. Both planet and voice of the people to the jolly plunderbund are rather interesting abstractions, but unimportant. As a final touch, a section christening Planet Vox Populi would be a fitting rider on the tariff bill.

GAMBLING.

Westbrook Pegler, writing in the New York Evening Post, contrasts the American attitude toward gambling with that of European and Latin American countries. Last year Portugal collected $125,000 from six licensed gambling casinos. Pegler thinks this might be a suggestion to "those American communities in which gambling is tolerated by the politicians and local opinion, but forbidden by law." In Europe and Latin America officials take the view that, since it is impossible to stamp out gambling, it is wise to place it under official regulation and make it pay tribute to the State. In this country, we pretend officially that gambling does not exist; yet it is a matter of common knowledge it thrives, with the connivance of corrupt public officials.

There are certain exceptions. In Illinois, Maryland and Kentucky horseracing is sanctioned by law and carefully regulated. But usually, as in Madison County, Ill., Saratoga, N. Y., Atlantic City, N. J., Miami, Fla., and hundreds of other localities, gamblers are not only permitted but encouraged to operate under the protection of public officials, who thereby increase their private bank accounts. Again to quote Pegler, "Wherever gambling resorts operate more or less openly . . . one may take it for granted that the local Sheriff, the Chief of Police or the town political boss is levying a tax on the boys."

Corruption of public officials, however, is not the only evil that follows from unregulated gambling. It frequently gives rise to murder and other forms of violence; moreover the patrons are at the mercy of the honesty and fairness, or lack of those qualities in the operator. Thousands of persons, for example, attend the dog races across the river every night during the season, but no one is permitted to inspect the management's books or to say how much it shall deduct as its share of the betting.

Which is better? To hide our heads in the sand and refuse to recognize that gambling is an irrepressible human trait; or take the honest view that, since it cannot be stamped out it had better be put under stringent regulation?

UNEMPLOYMENT SINKS A CABINET.

Many a storm had been weathered by the Mueller Cabinet of the German Republic since it took office in June, 1928. The stormy reparations sessions at The Hague, the economic crisis in December, the Nationalist referendum, ratification of the Young plan, the national defense act—all these shook the coalition Ministry, but it survived. The German instinct for order and the personal pressure of President Hindenburg held up the Cabinet for 21 months. Unemployment now has proved its Nemesis.

Budgetary deficits and other fiscal troubles long had harassed the Cabinet. These troubles were aggravated by unemployment, and a project to increase the doles by 100,000,000 marks was the direct cause of the Cabinet crash. Of Germany's 12,500,000 workers (census of 1925), about 2,000,000 now are unemployed. Cost of the dole has averaged 1,000,000,000 marks per annum for the last several years.

Unemployment is truly a problem that worries the statesmen and shakes the Cabinets of the world. MacDonald's troubles in England have come largely from this issue and its ramifications; he has just received from the Parliamentary Labor wing of his party what is virtually an ultimatum on the subject. The genius who arises to solve this spreading problem will have a place in history.

WHAT PRISON NEGLECT HAS COME TO.

Degenerate Republicanism in the South

Huston scandal an exhibit of G. O. P. efforts to break further into South, says Republican paper; Hoover won section not by vote of better element, but by support of bigotry and venality; party discarded its own best, took over Democrats' worst; such alliance cannot endure, for decent citizens heed only honest opinion.

From the Chicago Tribune.

THE usefulness of Claudius H. Huston of Tennessee as chairman of the Republican National Committee seems to be more than in question. He explains and defends his connection with Muscle Shoals promotion and with money collections to secure acceptance of the American Cyanamid Co. bid, a fund at one time used to cover his stock margins, it appears, but the Republicans do not care to enter the congressional elections with him in charge.

Mr. Huston is an exhibit of the new Republican endeavor to break further into the Democratic South, to keep what Hoover took from Al Smith and to extend possessions further. It has not been executed with many fortunate results for the party. In trying to make the Democratic South Republican, the management is making the Republican North Democratic. The control of the party is being turned over to the worst section of its hereditary enemies.

Mr. Hoover's strength in the South was not and is not and cannot be new strength in the Republican party. He did not get the new South, where industrial development might produce voters with the Republican point of view. He got the backward South, the clergy-ruled fundamentalists. He got votes inspired by intolerance. There weren't any political principles involved in the switch-over from the Democratic to the Republican column in the South. There was a great deal of bigotry. There was considerable itch for profit and plunder. The sale of Federal offices already was making a scandal. Some of the turncoats hoped to make it a bigger one.

Political clerics such as Bishop Cannon traded Southern Democratic voters for control in the Republican national management. Their price was to be the dictation of policies obnoxious to many of the great Republican states. They used biddable and inflammable Southerners to get a commanding position in the councils of a party which has had no use for their kind. When the Republican party is itself, its enmity for these ideas and the people governed by them is instinctive.

The spirit of the fugitive slave act was injected into the management of the party which detested it. The Republican party was spread in the South by discarding its own best and taking over the Democratic worst. It was and is political degeneration. Southern Democrats of principle were not beguiled by it. It got the Cannons and Heflins. It would have been one thing to have taken the election and called it a day, but that was not the program at all. The administration has tried to keep these offensive elements in the party and, of course, can do so only by submission to their requirements.

It would seem that the purpose was to take the bigotry and illiteracy of the South and join it to the bigotry and illiteracy of the North and call it a party. It may be in the book that the American people must divide politically along that line before they can decide the questions of constitutional government, social control and individual rights. If that is to be the case, one may be certain that the party of bigotry and illiteracy will not win. If the Republican party takes to this road it is on the way to the cemetery to join the other American parties which have supported oppression or compromised with supporters.

Eastern Efforts to Smother Gulf Ports

From the New Orleans Item.

NEW ORLEANS and the Gulf Coast are much indebted to the St. Louis newspapers—the Star, the Globe-Democrat and the Post-Dispatch—for a vigorous stand they have taken against a radically destructive effort by Eastern financial and commercial interests to get rulings from the Interstate Commerce Commission which would shut the Gulf ports out of the Mississippi Valley's export trade.

We reproduce elsewhere an expression by the Post-Dispatch, as typical of what all three papers are saying. The Post-Dispatch goes into more detail than the others on the fundamentals of this situation.

The press of St. Louis, as a whole, has followed more intelligently and more exhaustively these problems of Valley commerce as relate to railway and waterway developments than most of the newspapers of the Mississippi Valley.

We are blind and fatuous indeed, if we fail to recognize the great and selfish financial and commercial interests that work constantly against the development of the Valley in favor of the Eastern seaboard. Business is none too good in any section of the United States. The Eastern seaboard has for generations represented the accumulated capital of the country, or a vast part of it, and it takes the position from long habit that the right to exploit the rest of the country for its own advantage is inherent in itself.

Time and again this newspaper has tried to impress on the people of our city and State that our interest in New Orleans and in Louisiana is identical, not with those of the Eastern seaboard, but with those of the great Mississippi Valley.

We are part of the Valley and our future lies with the development of the Valley's industries, commerce and transport.

A chronic difficulty with all of us in the past, in approaching and handling problems that involved our own financial and commercial future, has been a sort of inferiority complex on the part of our public and political leaders.

New Orleans and the Mississippi Valley are going to get only part of what they are entitled to have if they organize intelligently and fight aggressively, not only against such opposition as involved in an arbitrary raise of freight rates on the North-and-South railroads, but if they fight for the reduction of these rates in competition with the East-West carriers.

Unfortunately we are almost always either inert or on the defensive.

Idolized by the laboring masses the world over for her fearless advocacy of their cause, "Mother" Jones, as she is known to them, is confident she will emerge victorious in this, her greatest fight.

She will tell you cheerfully that she must be well by May 1.

"I will be 100 years old then, and I want to go to Chicago on that day. The Chicago Federation of Labor intends to have a celebration in honor of my century of life. I don't want to miss it."

Keenly alive to what is going on in the world, admitting that even now she would not be averse to "getting out and raising a little hell" for "my boys," Mary Jones still possesses many of those characteristics that made her one of the most picturesque characters in American industrial life.

FROM her sick bed, at the home of Walter Burgess in Hyattsville, Md., came evidence recently of "Mother" Jones' interest in national affairs. When she learned of the death of her friend, William Howard Taft, she dictated a statement to the press in which she deplored his passing and recounted some of her experiences with him when he was President.

Hated and feared as much as she was loved and worshiped, "Mother" Jones' influence and reputation was international. She has been driven out of industrial centers of this country time after time because of her activities. She has been branded as an agitator, and knows what it means to be thrown in jail and kept there.

She did not fear armed deputy sheriffs or militia. More than once she has openly defied the courts. All capitalists who expressed opposition to union labor were characterized by her as "high-class burglars." It was one of her favorite expressions. A writer, describing her in those days, said, "She looked as though she had just come from a prayer meeting—but she doesn't use that kind of language."

USUALLY attired in a simple black dress with a little bonnet becoming one of her years, "Mother" Jones looked like a quiet old woman as she went from place to place fighting for the cause of "my boys," but her shrewd gray eyes indicated she was determined, and that she believed she had a mission in life.

In her declining years she has had the satisfaction of having those who now hold high place in the national life of this country "beat a path" to her door. Only a few weeks ago Senator Borah, an old friend, wrote to her, "You have added joy to the lives of others. You have planted hope and aroused ambition among those pressed down with personal cares. All this must be a great comfort and consolation in these hours."

Of Making Many Books

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Light From Within

LIFE AND MYSELF. By Giovanni Papini. Translated from the Italian by Dorothy Emmrich. (Brentano's, N. Y., $2.50.).

WHENEVER an author puts pen to paper, he is in varying degrees — depending both upon his medium and the personal equation involved—presenting to the world his own way of looking at life. But avowedly eager to reveal himself is the man who writes his autobiography. We are given the name of his ancestors, their occupations, the date of birth of the writer, his schooling, his loves, his children, the honors conferred upon him, the address of his house, and perhaps, the size and brand of his shoes. Often we wade through all this only to close the book strangely uninformed about what of wisdom the man has learned amid his days of activity. Indeed, no matter what the medium, nor how directly it leads to a man's philosophy, it is only rarely that we know a man with any degree of thoroughness as a result of reading his work.

In "Life and Myself," Signor Papini gives us no single fact about himself—neither his age, his native land, nor any act he has performed—yet it is the most intimate autobiography this reviewer has chanced to read. It is as personal as a lyric, but less specific. We verily live a specimen of each experience with him, for the book is much more than lyrically revealing. In reading it one creates of necessity the autobiography of one's own spirit.

Early in the volume, Signor Papini identifies himself with the reader, and that identification is convincing because the thoughts discussed are thoughts which have come to all of us. They have intruded upon the turmoil of our lives at odd moments: in the midst of a concert, when a child has laughed; in the presence of the stars, when sleep is slow in coming, when the play of light and shade in a room has suddenly caught us up. These thoughts we have, perhaps, pushed aside as interfering with the activity of life; Signor Papini asserts the necessity of examining them that the speed of the march may be increased. What in life has meaning? Is the future in itself important or is it important merely as "a creation and part of the present?" Why does man philosophize? Why does he plan? Why dream? What is death and what has it to do with our will to die? Why is the ordinary man not to be envied? Why, above all, is it important to know oneself? To renounce others? To live in the present? What is love? And why do we cling to youth? The material has in many cases been approached directly; occasionally with the aid of a significant, fable-like anecdote.

Yet this is no ingrown, anemic introspection—and to introspection, too, a chapter is given. Signor Papini seems to have written in answer to a compelling need to analyze the meaning of life, and that need is purposive. We must give attention to these problems in order that we may better fulfill the promise intrinsic in each life. The book is especially for the man who would dedicate himself to something, anything that seems of genuine value. Here is an important difference between Signor Papini and the usual exhorter. There is no one method by which all may live colorfully; no one creed which all must accept; no one mode through which all must prove nobility. Freedom from the non-essentials and slavery to the best impulses are urged upon us, but each man must determine what for him is non-essential, what for him are the best impulses.

Dealing as it does with adventures of the spirit, "Life and Myself" is not dated by its own material. It could have been written centuries ago or centuries hence, no doubt. It is simple enough to hold the interest of a child and deep enough to compel the adult to re-read.

Each of the 26 chapters is entirely independent; yet the whole is a unit. The oneness is achieved in part by the glow of high earnestness with which this prose poetry is touched; in part by the fact that although each bit of thought is examined separately and not again referred to; yet these bits are but the mosaic fragments of a consistent philosophy, and these fragments fuse themselves into a whole as we reflect upon what we have read. "Life and Myself" is the work of no dilettante in thinking. Signor Papini seems to have suffered through to his conclusions and to be stating those conclusions honestly at whatever cost to his sensibilities.

Dishonesty in literature is always offensive, but in this book the slightest touch of affectation would prick the bubble of the whole. Fortunately that destructive touch does not occur and there is besides an affirmative ring of honesty which becomes more convincing as the book advances. When we conclude the experience of reading "Life and Myself" it is with a sense of having shared Signor Papini's struggle to pierce through the meaningless accoutrements of life into its essence and there to find beauty and meaning and a sense of high obligation.

"You look at the earth, copy it, describe it, use it for the necessities of life, but not once do you think of listening to it. It never enters your mind that the world is talking to you, that it is saying something to you, that it is awaiting some answer from you! You look upon the earth as a storehouse or a farm, as a house of sorrow or joy, but you have never thought that perhaps the earth is a voice, a voice that insistently repeats certain questions, a voice tuned to your ears, to your soul; a voice that is desperate and tired, that begs and implores you for an answer."

20,000 ITEMS IN TARIFF BILL, 2800 PAGES OF DEBATE ON IT

Figures on Measure Given by U. S. Office Before Boston Export Club.

BOSTON, March 29.—The story of the tariff bill was told in statistics last night by Dr. Alfred P. Dennis, vice chairman of the Tariff Commission at Washington. Impressing the ramifications of tariff making upon the Boston Export Club, he cited figures as follows:

Twenty thousand items are embraced in the pending bill, 4,500,000 words spoken on it in the Senate alone, 2800 pages of Congressional Record devoted to the debate, 2363 witnesses heard by House and Senate committees, 1800 pages filled by testimony taken, and 2750 pages filled with additional data.

Dr. Dennis said "the material contributed to the making of the new bill would fill two sets of the Encyclopedia Britannica of 24 volumes each, running 1000 pages to the volume."

BOY, 10, ENDS TRIP OF 10,000 MILES HERE

Smile and One Word of English Aid Him in Reaching Father.

Equipped with a sunny smile, one word of English, and a pair of inquisitive black eyes, 10-year-old George Minin completed a 10,000 mile journey all alone from China to St. Louis last week.

George came from Harbin, on the Siberian border, to be reunited with his father, John Minin, 1325 South Thirteenth street, a former Cossack, whom he had not seen since he was a tot.

During the long days aboard ship George made friends among the Russian speaking passengers who turned him over to the train conductor when he prepared to leave San Francisco on his overland trip. One conductor passed him along to another and the travelers' welfare societies along the route wired each other bulletins on his progress. So when he arrived at the Union Station Tuesday he was all smiles.

As might be expected from a boy who traveled half way around the world by himself—and the son of a Cossack, to boot—George isn't a bit perturbed by his strange surroundings and listens attentively, seeking to understand each word spoken in his presence.

St. Louis Too Cold.

Before he had been in the city long, however, he confided to his father that St. Louis is too cold for him and that he wished it would get warmer. The banks of the Sungari are warmer to George than the Mississippi Valley.

But he forgot the cold when he saw a motion picture theater and would not rest until his father took him. True, the picture was a "talkie" in a strange language, but George didn't require words to translate the antics of the comedians and the rapture of the screen lovers.

Standing sturdily erect, eyes front and hands on the seams of his trousers, military style, George posed for his picture today. First, however, he insisted by signs on putting on his best necktie. He winced as the flashlight was taken but his smile never faded.

And he made his first contribution to the conversation as his visitors departed, triumphantly repeating his lone English word:

Good-by. Good-by. Good-by."

Father Here Six Years.

When his father came to America from Russia six years ago he hoped to send soon for his wife and boy. But his wife died and the child was placed in the care of friends at Harbin. The father saved his wages, first as a rider in a wild west show and later as a cutter in a shoe factory, remarried, and sent for his son.

Now George stays indoors most of the day awaiting his father's return from work. His life is complicated by the fact that his stepmother speaks no Russian and he is anxious to learn something more in English than "Good-by."

NICHOLAS PELLIGREEN, HEAD OF CONTRACTING FIRM, DIES

Ill a Year; Known for His Ability to Predict Trend in City's Growth.

Nicholas Pelligreen, building contractor, real estate dealer and president of the Pelligreen Construction and Investment Co., 816 Pine street, died of cancer at St. Mary's Hospital early today. He was 67 years old and had been ill for a year.

In real estate circles he was known particularly for his ability to foresee the trends of the city's growth and acquire property which would soon increase tremendously in value. Property near a street car line's terminus he regarded as especially desirable.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Annie Pelligreen, two sons, Lee and Clarence, and two daughters, Mrs. Frances Lavin and Mrs. J. T. Davenport, all of St. Louis. Funeral services will be held from the residence, 1123 Hodiamont avenue, to St. Rose's Catholic Church, Maple and Goodfellow avenues, at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

BYRD PLANS TO STAY 3 WEEKS IN PANAMA

To Leave Wellington, N. Z., April 9 and Then Wait for His Ships.

(Copyright by the New York Times and Post-Dispatch.)

WELLINGTON, N. Z., March 29.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will sail from here April 9 on the liner Corinthic for Panama, where he will arrive about May 1. He will remain there three weeks, until the arrival of his flagship, the bark City of New York, which he will board for the last leg of the long trip home.

With Byrd on the Corinthic will be Charles Loegren, his secretary; Lloyd Berkner, radio operator, and Russell Owen, correspondent of the New York Times and St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Sailing from New Zealand this time of the year is difficult because of the heavy traffic to England, but the steamship companies have done everything possible to provide accommodations for Byrd and his party.

Capt. Alton Parker and George A. Thorne Jr. sailed with Capt. Ashley McKinley on the liner Miramar for San Francisco, where they will arrive about the middle of next month.

Dean Smith will sail from Wellington on April 1 for Panama, where he will put in a month's flying before rejoining the City of New York for the trip north. Smith is a Lieutenant in the army air corps reserve and is anxious to spend his waiting time in the air.

The steamer Eleanor Bolling, the Byrd expedition's supply ship, will sail tomorrow from Dunedin for Tahiti and Panama. After its departure, Byrd probably will visit Wellington for a day or two to call on Government officials and thank them for the courtesies extended to his expedition. He is now busy cleaning up the last details of business connected with the expedition in this country, and has had little time for relaxation.

TEACHING ADOLESCENT, TOPIC AT CONFERENCE

Prof. M. V. O'Shea Urges Work Have Concrete, Practical Bearing.

Problems of educating adolescents in high school and the early terms of college were discussed today at the third annual conference for teachers, school administrators and patrons sponsored by the educational department of Washington University. M. V. O'Shea, professor of education at the University of Wisconsin said this period is most in need of improved teaching practices.

"School work at this time should be concrete and have a practical bearing," he said. "Nature seems to urge boys, and to a certain extent, girls, at this time to become interested in making a living. You cannot keep them interested in school if they are required to spend their time on grammar, or algebra, or names and dates in history." School children of adolescent age need close friends and teachers should try to be more confidants than disciplinarians, he added.

"The day of high-handed flunking must cease," Frank L. Eversull, principal of East St. Louis High School said in describing what high school graduates have a right to expect from colleges. He explained that ever-increasing standards of scholarship in secondary schools and colleges is tending to create an aristocracy of intelligence, and students of lesser ability are ignored instead of receiving guidance which would resule in a maximum development of their limited talents.

"The selective character of these schools must disappear," he said. "The schools must accept the mandate of the people that there shall be free public education on all levels and grades for all of the children of all the people."

Leonard V. Koos, professor of secondary education at the University of Chicago, pointed to a need of greater co-operation between high schools and colleges. The similarity of their curricula in the later years of high school and the early years of college indicates a similarity of purpose, he said. "We have had too much defiance of the preference of colleges on the part of those who work in high schools and too much disparagement by the colleges of what the high schools are trying to do," he said.

At last night's meeting Prof. Koos reviewed the development of secondary schools which followed the establishment of junior high schools and junior colleges. "The narrow isthmus which once existed between the elementary school and the college has developed into a broad and spacious mainland," he said. The new developments, he explained, were made necessary because secondary schools had to adapt themselves to the wider range of ability and interest of their students. Between 50 and 60 per cent of children of appropriate age are now receiving education in secondary schools, he said, while in 1890 the number was between 3 and 4 per cent.

GOVERNOR VETOES BILL FOR NEW YORK CITY INQUIRY

Says Measure Defies Precedent, Adds Unheard-of Duties to Work of Executive.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 29.—A bill to investigate the administration of New York City was vetoed today by Gov. Roosevelt. In his veto message the Governor denounced the proposal of Republican legislative leaders as "conceived for wholly political purposes" and as passed in "obvious lack of good faith."

He said, however, he did not veto the bill on this account. He listed these reasons instead: "Its defiance of precedent; its attempt to add unheard-of duties to the executive function; its creation of a precedent which if logically pursued would compel future Governors to meddle in the affairs of every county and city in the State."

He declared he could order an investigation only on filing of specific charges.

The investigation would have been made by a commission named by the Governor. The Republicans cited the failure of the police to solve the Rothstein murder, the Vitale case and charges against the Magistrates' courts and the Pathe studio fire as evidence that the investigation was needed.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 29.

THE magician rides a top wave again. For a number of years he was in almost total obscurity and his only engagements were at parties for children, Coney Island sideshows and the fly-by-night carnival exhibition at the cross-roads.

Today his opulence compares to the days when fashionable audiences in evening attire flocked to see the incredible legerdemain of Herman the Great. The late Houdini, master illusionist, brought a temporary revival to magic, but with his passing another decline set in.

During the past winter the high light of two musical revues was Fred Keating, a suave old soapy fellow with drawing room manners, who ambled in and out various scenes, grabbing hooduses out of the air and making dinguses disappear with mysterious abandon.

He later appeared with his tricks in a two-man show for a brief run on Broadway. A supper club, in the same manner, featured another prestidigitateur who picked pockets of patrons at ringside tables while they watched the performance, returning the lifted loot at the end of his act.

The new type of magician does not, however, sport a thin mustache, pointed goatee or brush his hair in the Mephistopheleian manner. His envanishments are performed to the accompaniment of sophisticated patter. He must bewilder, but not take himself seriously. A show hit has 19 girls interspersing dance steps with feats of magic.

With the renaissance a number of tony magic shops have opened in contrast to the dingy little holes-in-the-wall that used to struggle for existence on Sixth and Tenth avenues. One is a private house in the East sixties, where buyers are received only by appointment.

Strangely enough, one of the largest manufacturing distributing points for magic apparatus is—of all places—Oshkosh, Wis. It has a depot from which most of the professionals are supplied. Oshkosh also furnishes most of the necessary apparatus for handcuff kings.

THE debonair Keating astonished Broadway by holding a cage containing a live bird in an outstretched hand to the audience. He explains what he is going to do and asks that all watch closely. The bird and the cage vanish in thin air to the accompaniment of a collective gasp. This trick complete costs $9.75 at the magical supply houses, yet it won for Keating innumerable columns of speculative wondering in New York newspapers.

AS an earnest student of magic for years, I have noticed the most mystifying tricks are invariably the simplest. One trick to me bordered on the spooky. It was performed in a music hall near Oxford Circus, in London. Sitting down in front—and, I suppose, looking sappy—the magician asked me for some article in my pockets. I gave him a souvenir Columbian half-dollar, being the type who carried a pocket piece in a snap purse. He tossed it in the air and it was gone. Later an usher came down the aisle with a basket of lemons. I was asked to select one and cut it in halves. I took one from the bottom—cut it open and there was my pocket piece.

SHORTLY before Houdini's death I told him of the incident. He pledged me to secrecy and revealed the secret. It was so simple it was laughable. There are two chances in 50 of it missing fire.

IN other days spats were worn chiefly by broken down actors and pseudo Counts and were known as "poverty tops." A fashion expert discovers that out of a selected list of 50 stage and screen stars 39 are spat wearers. The original name was spatterdashes and the first actor to appear on the stage wearing them was the late John Drew.

"CAN anything be done," inquires Tom D., "about those old fossils who insist upon dancing the old-fashioned waltz and nearly run the ladies off their feet with those quick backward dashes?"

Let us alone. We don't mean any harm.

MUSIC

A FAUSTIAN FINISH

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

THE St. Louis Symphony Orchestra reached the high limit of its technical possibilities yesterday afternoon when, under the direction of Eugene Goossens, it played a complete Faust program consisting of Wagner's "Faust" overture, three excerpts from Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust" and Liszt's "Faust Symphony."

It was the final Friday afternoon concert of the season and if the subscribers were not impressed by the tightly drawn unity of the orchestra, its tonal balance, and its subtly differentiated light and shade, they never will be. It is not likely that the orchestra, as it is constituted now, will ever play any better.

At first glance an All-Faust program may have seemed to be just another stunt—such as those all-waltz, all-Strauss, all-Blue, all-White program which conductors perpetrate from time to time. In most programs of the sort the enforced connection between numbers has all the logic of a marriage between two otherwise dissimilar persons who happen to have the same initials or the same make of automobile. Yesterday's program, on the contrary, had a unity that extended beyond the similarity of the names into the music itself. The Wagnerian and Lisztian treatment of the Faust theme were two phases of the same thing with an identity not only of mood and viewpoint but of thematic material as well. The Berlioz music, coming between, provided contrast without incongruity for even here a certain inward kinship was evident.

Students of music in the audience were undoubtedly impressed by the fact that Liszt's music sounded even more Wagnerian than Wagner. Forewarnings of Tristan, Donner, Sieglinde and even Parsifal peered out at one brightly and confirmed the impression that Wagner was indebted to his father-in-law for something more than a masterful wife. In the case of the famous "Glance" theme, however, which appeared in both the Faust overture and the Faust symphony, the indebtedness would seem to be on the other side. For not only did Wagner's overture ante-date the Liszt symphony but the germ of this haunting musical idea had already appeared in Wagner's "Rienzi."

But aside from all that both compositions are fervently moving poetic documents. The "Faust" symphony is Liszt with all of his otherwise poisonous facility harnessed up to deeply felt and honestly articulated emotions. The music of the "Gretchen" movement marks a high point of nineteenth century romanticism.

In the performance of the "Faust" symphony the orchestra was supported yesterday by a chorus from the Concordia Seminary—all having fresh young voices which they disposed with intelligence and feeling. The music allotted to the tenor soloist, however, proved to be a little too much for him.

The discriminating leadership of Conductor Goossens and the responsiveness of the orchestra were equally good in all three numbers. The often notorious Racoczy March was played for its musical value instead of being turned into another boob-bumper. It achieved its dramatic force through its inner strength rather than through the loudness of its brasses.

The orchestra and Mr. Goossens will make their final appearance tonight.

FORD DIAGNOSES ILLS OF BRITISH INDUSTRY

Suggests Higher Wages—Says Leaders in Manufacturing Need New Stimulus.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 29.—The current English review, the Spectator, publishes an interview with Henry Ford in which he answers the question: "What is wrong with British industry?"

Ford declares British industry needs the birth of a new spirit of enterprise and initiative among its leaders and that higher wages would give this new stimulus immediately.

"The main trouble with industry everywhere," Ford says, "not only in England, but also in the United States, is that leaders of industry do not properly interpret their difficulties as notices to change their methods."

The Spectator says their interview was obtained eight weeks ago by John Dugdale, former member of the Spectator staff.

Ford does not think England's case is by any means hopeless, "but it will need a complete change of outlook among your manufacturer," he says, adding that Government action alone cannot put industry on its feet. He insists "British industry is not in need of money, it is in need of initiative."

Ford's only concrete suggestion, which, he says, "applies to America as much as it does to England is higher wages."

Ford says the effect of raising the wages in England would be an immediate improvement in trade. "British industry would receive a tremendous stimulus. It would at once increase the consuming power of the people in England and that's what you want—greater purchasing power."

Ford comments that it took about ten years to have the principle of higher wages in increasing efficiency and raising consumption power of workers accepted in America, "but it is now generally recognized as part of the practical science of business."

Ford is starting a plant at Dagenham to sell his cars to the British Dominions in which there are 9,000,000 automobile owners. He says he will need 30,000 men at this plant and he purposes to pay about £5 a week (about $25) as a minimum wage.

By John E. Wray

Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

If Benny Bass is still junior lightweight champion of the world of leather pushers this morning, he owes it to the Missouri State boxing law, which compels no-decision contests. After 10 rounds of battling with the Chicago Italian Eddie Shea, last night, the score by rounds and by points, as well as the acclaim of the 11,299 ringsiders at The Arena indicated that the titleholder would have gone down to defeat, had Referee Harry Ertle of Jersey City been permitted to give a decision.

It was a battle that bristled with thrills and climaxes. At times the crowd roared its approval. The fighting stormed through the earlier rounds as if to a quick finish, with knockdowns, rallies after the bell and head-to-head pumping of padded fists. In the fifth, Bass floored Shea for the full count; in the seventh, Shea knocked Bass to the floor for a back somersault and another long count. And, as the last bell sounded, the boys stood head to head, pumping both hands into one another gor a second or two after the bell had sounded the end of the contest. The referee had to tear the men apart.

Fight Like a Drama.

If the struggle had been dramatized for the movies, it could hardly have included more studied climaxes. Yet the crowd settled back after the final gong and gave only tentative applause. Unmistakable boos smote the rather astonished ears of the tired fighters. It takes a lot to give a ringsider $6.50 worth, in these exacting times.

It was not until the ruffled feathers of the fighting cocks had been smoothed down and the men were leaving the ring that the reaction came. Then cheers that made The Arena resound proclaimed that Shea had won the favor of the spectators.

A ringside consensus of experts showed that Shea had gained the unofficial verdict. The writer's score showed a count by rounds of four for Shea—the first, second, fourth and seventh — and two for Bass—the fifth and ninth —with four even. Scoring by the Illinois Commission plan showed Shea had 52 points and Bass 48.

The attendance and the receipts were something of a disappointment to the management and to the managers of the fighters, who had expected some 20,000 spectators and a net gate of over $50,000. The receipts were $34,341.50 net, which failed to reach the record set by the Carnera-Wiggins show by $9000.

Both Men Cautious.

But although the battle had its highlights, it was nevertheless disappointing to those who had come to see championship battling. Despite their activity, the men were exceedingly cautious. And more than half the fight was spent in futile head-to-head milling, with both boxers mauling in a two-handed attack. Most of the blows landed on one another's arms and gloves, with a minimum of damage.

11,299 Persons At Arena Fights Pay $37,181.66

DESPITE promotional promises of a sell-out and a gate of nearly $50,000, the fight program at The Arena last night fell far short of these figures, it is shown in Commissioner Seneca C. Taylor's official figures today. The attendance was exactly 11,299 spectators and the gross receipts totaled $37,181.66, Commissioner Taylor said.

The State was paid $1770.08 in taxes, while the city collected $1767.08. The net receipts were $34,341.50. Champion Bass received 37½ per cent of the net and Shea received 20 per cent.

Bass' share, $12,878.06.
Shea's share, $6868.30.

Tickets sold at the various prices were:

1,810 tickets sold at $6.60.
64 tickets sold at $5.50.
1,597 tickets sold at $4.40.
1,744 tickets sold at $3.30.
4,921 tickets sold at $2.20.
773 tickets sold at $1.50.
390 passes.
11,299 total.

As a champion, Bass was a distinct disappointment. He accepted the defensive in the earlier rounds, fought a retreating battle until near the close, and was wild with that alleged irresistible right. Bass tried with it time after time, but either smote the circumambient atmosphere—or shall we say tobacco smoke—some mighty wallops, or else he landed high on the top of Shea's bowed head.

Last Three Rounds Duds.

Shea as challenger showed aggressiveness and a good punch. He made the fight look good, but even he was not convincing. One expected more skill and science from both. Had the battle been between two comparatively unknown boxers, the last three rounds of it probably would have drawn prolonged boos. As it was the crowd fidgeted through the last nine minutes of infighting and clinching.

There were the usual disgruntled murmurs that there was "something doing" in the fight, based on the fact that an out-of-town referee was brought here to handle the show and on the unsatisfactory ending of the contest. But the knockdowns seem to discount this.

Shea Scores First Blow of Fight and Forces Champion to Accept the Defensive

Shea showed his colors early. He was out for blood. He leaped after Bass at the start of the first round, and drove the champion to the defensive with a solid left hook to the head. Crouching and bobbing, as he came in, the challenger backed Bass around the ring trying for openings. Benny poked a tentative glove at Shea apparently feeling out the Italian. But Shea refused to be felt out. He piled in an threw gloves, most of which Bass blocked. Midway Eddie missed a lead and slipped to the floor, but he was up instantly and after Bass. At the end of the round Shea had done all the forcing and landed all the good blows. Bass may have been sizing up the situation.

Bass Misses Right-Hander.

Still forcing, Shea hooked Bass in the second. The champion unlimbered his right here, after measuring Shea with his left. It was too high and the crowd sighed an "Ah" at the evident force of the wasted wallop. Bass made it all square when he, too, slipped to the canvas and rose instantly. Immeditely afterwards he had the crowd cheering when he scored his first solid right. It appeared to catch Shea on the cheekbone, and checked him. Then, head on, Shea bobbed in again. Shea's nose was bleeding slightly—and continued to bleed through the fight, it may be mentioned. Infuriated, Eddie rushed Bass and the champion circled around the ring lightly, with splendid footwork. Shea caught him now and then. Once he slugged with Bass, heads together, and did not get the worst of it. This was Shea's round by a good margin.

Unable to break through Bass' defense with his hooks, Shea turned his attention more to infighting in the third, and began to pump both arms into Bass' body. Bass began using his right again but could not reach the mark because of Shea's crouch, with his chin buried in his chest. Bass' glove slipped off Shea's hair or missed entirely several times. He did score one or two solid ones, but failed to shake Shea. In the latter half of the round Bass found himself and began to score with lefts and Shea was missing badly. The round was even.

The fourth round saw the men working at top speed. Bass was meeting Shea's rushes, but Shea was landing the left hook again. Later he drove Bass around the ring. Bass twice hit dangerously near the waistline with his left. And at the bell the men were fighting head to head. The bell failed to stop them and Referee Ertle had to part them.

In the fifth round it looked as though it were curtains for Shea. He ran headlong into the famous right of Bass, delivered with full power, though high.

Shea Is Knocked Down.

Shea went to the canvas and then rose to his knee, remaining there shaking his head and listening to the referee counting in unison with Freddie Gilmaster, official timekeeper. Bass waited in his own corner until Shea had taken the full nine seconds allowed him, and then charged in. Shea clinched and Bass tried to she him off and finish the job but Eddie was not near to the finihsing point. His rugged body shook off the effects of the wallop almost instantly and before the round ended he was recovering.

He was O K again in the sixth round. Bass could do nothing with him. In the seventh Eddie found himself again and as Bass charged in he ran right into Shea's best bet—a left hook. He staggered and fell on his back, rolling completely over in a somersault. He rose to his knee with eyes clear as if unhurt. He took Fred Gilmaster's full count before he got up to renew the struggle.

Battle Ends Furiously.

From this point the battle waxed furious and fast, if flying gloves mean anything. Yet during the next three rounds the men did little but rush into close quarters, lay head to head, and throw harmless gloves. As the writer saw it most of these gloves failed to reach any vital spot. They thudded against the opponent's gloves and forearms.

In the ninth round one of Bass' rights shook up Shea and gave him a hairline margin on the round. But the crowd was fast becoming peevish and exhorted the fighters to do something, as the tenth round neared its close. The boys were tired and arm weary, if nothing else. But when the gong sounded its final clang, it seemed to spur them into further action for, instead of quitting, they went at one another hammer and tongs until the referee pried them apart. It looked all to the hokum.

Little Damage Done.

TILDEN WINNER; MISS JACOBS IS BEATEN ABROAD

By the Associated Press.

CANNES, France, March 29.—Baroness von Reznicek, women's tennis champion of Germany, easily defeated Helen Jacobs, America's second ranking star, by scores of 6—2, 6—3, today in the semifinals of the tournament here.

In the men's singles semifinals, Bill Tilden, the veteran American champion, trimmed the Japanese newcomer, Satoh, 6—1, 6—2, 6—3.

In a bitterly fought five-set match, Wilbur F. Coen Jr., Kansas City youth, who ranks eighth among American players, defeated Tamio Abe, third in the Japanese ranking, by scores of 6—8, 11—9, 6—1, 4—6, 6—3.

Arena Sidelights

"Wonder where the next Bass-Shea title fight will be?" was a prevailing ringside query after the show. "Chicago," was the usuol guess.

Referee Ertle had little to do. Bass made it easy by landing no fouls, and the commission made it easier by providing an official second-counter—Fred Gilmaster.

"That was the count of eight," announced Referee Ertle between rounds, after the Shea knockdown in the fifth. Freddie Gilmaster counted nine, he said. The writer's stop-watch said ten.

Ertle's Count Differs.

"He was up at six," said Ertle after Bass had risen from the canvas in the seventh. "I counted nine," said Gilmaster. The stop watch agreed with Gilmaster.

The stop was held on counts by other referees. In the Kaiser-Moran fight, Referee Bob Parkinson was from ½ second to three seconds slow, in counting nine over Moran, who hit the canvas repeatedly. Walter Heisner and the stop watch were in accord when he counted over Phil Verdi in the closing bout.

If Bass is a real champion, he left his wares at home. His marksmanship was poor and he let Shea take the lead away from him. As a display of title-class fighting, the bout was considerably below par. The title holder must have had an off night.

In the Sweet Bye-and-Bye.

Did they quit smoking? Yes, long enough to light a fresh cigar.

Did they put out anybody? Sure—they put out the lighted matches.

Will they ever stop the smoke hounds? Certainly they will—next time.

When is next time? Like tomorrow, "next time" never comes.

The best fighter on the card—Billy Wallace, by long odds. There's a boy who could be king if he had a punch like Bass owns. A cool, crafty lad this; but his artillery is not quite heavy enough to take him to the top.

Ouch! My Sore Lip!

"Great show!" said Commissioner Seneca Taylor. "Those boys were in dead earnest. They hurled terrific punches. Shea carried his chin on his chest—that saved him."

McLarnin Rallies in Late Rounds to Defeat Thompson; 16,750 Persons Attend Bout

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 29.—That smiling Celt, Jimmy McLarnin, has removed another obstacle in his march toward the welterweight title, but only after one of the hardest battles of his career.

Through ten rounds of rugged battling, young Jack Thompson, sinewy Negro from Oakland, Cal., gave McLarnin just about as much as he could handle but the Vancouver Irishman, rallying in the last few rounds, earned the unanimous decision of the judges and referee. A near capacity crowd of 18,000 roared approval as the tide of battle swung first this way, then that.

In the end, McLarnin's victory could be attributed not to the crushing power of his punches, but to superior ring generalship and boxing skill as well as rare courage. Not once did Jimmy slam home with solid force the right that had knocked out such contenders as Joe Glick, the lightweight, and Sammy Baker and Ruby Goldstein, the welterweights. Thompson presented a canny defense that had McLarnin puzzled all evening.

Thompson Hits Harder.

As a matter of fact, the hardest punches of the bout were landed not by McLarnin's famed right hand but by Thompson's. After the first four rounds, three of which McLarnin won, Thompson opened the fifth with a great two-fisted attack that all but swept McLarnin into defeat. Jolting lefts and solid rights drove the Irishman around the ring, drew blood from his nose and had him groggy. Gamely, however, McLarnin called upon all his resources of boxing skill and fought his way out of danger. Not for two more rounds, though, did he recover entirely from that beating. The sixth was fairly even and Thompson won the seventh chiefly because he forced the fighting.

McLarnin came back with a rush in the eighth and ninth to regain his lead and hold it through a wild slugfest in the tenth and last round. There was some booing when the verdict was announced but the Associated Press score sheet gave McLarnin five rounds, Thompson three and two even.

The official paid attendance was 16,789 with gross receipts of $77,868.21.

McLarnin's Hand Injured in Bout With Thompson

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 29.

DISPLAYING a badly swollen right hand, Jimmy McLarnin today declared he thought he hurt his hand in the first round of his bout here last night against Young Jack Thompson. McLarnin's friends said the injured hand explained why he had not knocked out Thompson.

A preliminary examination indicated the hand had been fractured, it was said by McLarnin's handlers.

PEEWEE KAISER AND FIELDS WIN KAYO VICTORIES

There were four auxiliary bouts on The Arena fight program last night before the main event and one after it. The curtain-raiser saw our own clever little Joe Ghnouly oppose Mattie White of Philadelphia. White is Bass' sparring mate. Joe started out by gaining a good lead over White, in the first round, but tired and lost the verdict by a close margin. Ghnouly is a clever boxer, but lacks punishing power to go very far.

Peewee Kaiser and Midget Mike Moran of Pittsburg furnished the next entertainment, which ended in a knockout for Peewee. Moran was a sturdy little comedian and took his gruelling with great gameness. He spent much of his time on the canvas, Peewee putting him there once each in the first, second and seventh rounds, and twice each in the fifth, sixth and eighth.

The last time (in the eighth) was his Waterloo and he failed to come back.

Wallace a Clever Boxer.

The third event was a 10-round bout between Billy Wallace of Cleveland and Augie Pisano of New York. Pisano was just a punching bag for the clever and crafty Wallace, a real good lightweight of high rank. He gave Pisano an unmerciful beating and had him down twice in the seventh round, once for the count. The second time the bell saved Pisano at six. A rugged fighter, Pisano lasted through the limit, although hammered about the ring like a punching bag. He was reeling and groggy at the end of the tenth.

Verdi a Real Gamester.

After the main event Marty Fields of Philadelphia boxed Phil Verdi of Boston in what was to have been a 10-round show. Verdi, a crafty veteran, was in poor condition for the fight, although he showed himself a ring-wise old egg. He was trying to last out the 10 rounds and in doing so he took a lot of punishment.

He hit the resin in the third, fifth and sixth, but he also had Fields down for a short count in the fifth. He also had Fields bleeding at the mouth. Had he been in shape Verdi might have made it a great battle. As it was Referee Heisner had to stop it to save the game fellow from possible injury. Verdi showed real fighting spirit in this bout. One would like to see him against Fields, after the Bostonian had nad proper training.

ILLINOIS A. C. WINS CENTRAL A. A. U. TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 29.—Illinois Athletic Club today was the possessor of the thirty-second annual Central A. A. U. indoor track and field title after winning the championships last night at Oak Park High School.

The champions took 48½ points, with Marquette University of Milwaukee a close second with 36½ points. Marquette kept the I. A. C. athletes at top speed throughout the meet.

Ray Conger, Harold Osborne and Herb Schwartze, I. A. C. stars, failed to appear.

CARNERA STOPS M'AULIFFE IN ONE ROUND FOR 14TH KNOCKOUT

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., March 29.—Primo Carnera, the ambling Alp from Italy, today faced the West in quest of victim No. 14, apparently unworried by threats of the National Boxing Commission to halt his alleged "one-round set-up knockout tour" of the United States.

In the manner made familiar by previous ring appearances, the 270-pound boxer, touted in some circles as a championship possibility, last night tipped over Jack McAuliffe of Detroit in two minutes and 18 seconds. It was Carnera's thirteenth American ring exhibition, and his thirteenth quickly executed knockout.

Three times the giant Italian hit McAuliffe, and three times McAuliffe hit the canvas. The first time didn't count. The second brought a count of nine from Referee Dan Darnell. The third time Primo's right uppercut sent McAuliffe partly out of the ring. Darnell counted 10. At the completion of the count, McAuliffe got up and walked nonchalantly to his corner.

6500 Pay $15,000.

A crowd of more than 6500 paid approximately $15,000, not so much to see a fight as to inspect the man mountain. Italians predominated, and cheers of "Vivo Carnera" greeted the giant as he entered the ring. The crowd was the largest to turn out for a ring event in Denver for many years.

The crowd dispersed without either cheering or booing, having apparently satisfied its desire to see the newest phenomenon of boxing, with the bout a minor consideration.

This afternoon, Carnera, with his party, was scheduled to leave for Los Angeles, where he will meet an opponent as yet unnamed. His managers said he also was scheduled to fight again the second week in April, in Oakland, Cal., against another fighter also not yet selected.

Ready to Meet Anyone.

Yesterday, after Stanley M. Isaacs, Cincinnati, president of the National Boxing Association, warned that the Italian's tour might be halted because of the mediocre fighters he has met, Carnera said he would meet any man in the world, provided box office arrangements were satisfactory.

An interpreter quoted the man mountain as further declaring that "you can't expect a man to go up against a world champion for a thousand dollars or so."

St. Francis Xavier Wins Parochial Basketball Title

The St. Francis Xavier basketball team captured the Parochial School championship yesterday afternoon by defeating the Holy Innocent School five, 25—17 before a large crowd at the St. Louis U. High School gymnasium. The two teams were the finalists of the 18 squads that competed in the three parochial school leagues. The winners were coached by Barney Oldfield, captain of the St. Louis U. varsity squad.

Play started slowly but the offense of the winners began to function during the second quarter and two field goals by Steffan and a long basket by Laughlin put St. Francis Xavier ahead, 9—3, at the half time.

Ruma, Holy Innocent's center, dropped in a long shot to open the scoring for the third quarter and with the help of his team-mate, Juelich, tied the score at 9—9. Krause put Holy Innocents ahead with a free throw. At this stage, Frein, left guard on St. Francis Xavier, was forced to leave the game on account of the personal foul rule. He was replaced by Donahue, who, although he was the smallest boy in the game, proved to be the star of the contest.

Donahue dropped in a short shot to put St. Francis Xavier ahead again as the third quarter ended. Krause kept Holy Innocents in the game with a field goal but in the next three minutes Donahue completely routed the losers defense by scoring three more baskets from the floor.

BROWNIE PITC

CLUB TO START NORTHWARD TREK AFTER BREWER GAME TOMORROW

By James M. Gould.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 29.—For the Browns, spring training, in its strictest sense, is nearly over. A game with the Milwaukee Brewers tomorrow and the camp here will be closed officially. Tomorrow night, the Missourians will be on their way north, with stops scheduled at Birmingham, Memphis, Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Ponca City, Topeka and Springfield, Mo.

Because of heavy rain, today's scheduled game with the Brewers was canceled. It was too wet to even hold a practice.

It may be said that, with the exception of Manush, who needs more work the player making up the team are physically fit. Nobody is sick. Nobody is injured. What the team has accomplished while here, in a baseball way, may be shown by certain statistics covering the exhibition games played to date.

Outfielders Hitting .255.

That the Browns of 1930 undoubtedly lack a scoring-punch has been stated and re-stated ad lib and, probably, ad nauseam. But, proof of a baseball pudding is in the playing and that a poor attack has been shown is simply the truth.

An outfield combination, according to modern baseball strategy, is supposed to be made up of a group of hard hitters. In games here in Florida, the Browns have had at various times Schulte, Manush, McNeely, Badgro, Gullic and Bennett in the outfield. Taken as a whole, this group has batted but .255. The rest of the team, consisting of infielders, pitchers and catchers, has batted all of .241.

It has been stated that the Browns, as made up, are a good defensive club. Again, the figures, the outfield to date has made but one error in 76 fielding chances which gives that department a defensive mark of .986. The infielders, catchers and pitchers are not far behind as they have made but five errors in 318 chances—a percentage of .984. These fielding marks are all that could be desired as they are probably 15 points better than the marks will be at the end of the approaching season.

Pitching Has Been Good.

But the batting averages leave much to be desired as they would have to be 40 points better to assure the club going anywhere in league competition.

Base running? The Browns have stolen seven times, three times in that 22-2 horror defeat they inflicted on the Milwaukee club at Fort Pierce.

Pitching? Excellent all the way as the figures show. Considering the work done by the eight men who probably will make up the regular pitching staff for 1930 (with the probable addition of George Blaeholder, as yet unsigned), it is found that Gray, Crowder, Stewart, Ogden, Holshouser, Coffman, Kimsey and Caldwell have held the opposition in 10 games to 17 runs—less than two a game and to 59 hits in 310 times at bat. This is an opposition batting average of .190—no figure at which to carp.

It all comes back, then, to the offense. The fielding is great, the base-running good enough and the pitching really remarkably good. Why isn't the team hitting? Which players have been holding their own and which have fallen down?

Can This Be True?

Again, the good old figures, write 'em down, write 'em down. Lu Blue has been humming along at a .375 rate but is not the leader who turns up in the veteran, Frank O'Rourke, not counted on to play regularly once the season is under way. At bat once more than Blue, Frank has batted exactly .400 with 10 hits in 25 times up. Bennett, up only 13 times, has batted .385 with some fluky singles helping out but Morris "Red" Badgro regularly employed in exhibitions, has the fine mark of .357 to his credit. Rootz, slated for release, is over the dividing line with a mark of .313. Manush, up but six times, is batting .333 and Kress, 10 times up, is an even .300. That ends the list of the .300 batsmen.

Fred Schulte, after hitting .500 in his first game, has slumped down to .270. Ted Gullic, robbed several times by great catches of opposing fielders, has only .195 to show for his work. Oscar Melillo made only one hit in his first 13 times at bat and has not improved a bit for he has made but 3 in 31 chances and can show only .097. Sammy Hale, known to be a very poor spring hitter, has conclusively proved the truth of his case by hitting only .143 with four hits in 28 times at bat.

Rick Ferrell has hit probably what he will continue to hit throughout the season, .270, while Clyde Manion has three hits and a .375 record, but has been up only eight times.

One New Player Added.

One player has been added to the St. Louis roster since the team came south—Joe Hassler, purchased from the Baltimore club. He probably will add to the defense—already good—but not to the offense—decidedly bad.

Brownie officials will tell you ish?

BROWNIE PITCHERS HAVE HELD OPPOSITION TO A .190 SWAT AVERAGE

CLUB TO START NORTHWARD TREK AFTER BREWER GAME TOMORROW

By James M. Gould.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 29.—For the Browns, spring training, in its strictest sense, is nearly over. A game with the Milwaukee Brewers tomorrow and the camp here will be closed officially. Tomorrow night, the Missourians will be on their way north, with stops scheduled at Birmingham, Memphis, Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Ponca City, Topeka and Springfield, Mo.

Because of heavy rain, today's scheduled game with the Brewers was canceled. It was too wet to even hold a practice.

It may be said that, with the exception of Manush, who needs more work the players making up the team are physically fit. Nobody is sick. Nobody is injured. What the team has accomplished while here, in a baseball way, may be shown by certain statistics covering the exhibition games played to date.

Outfielders Hitting .255.

That the Browns of 1930 undoubtedly lack a scoring-punch has been stated and re-stated ad lib and, probably, ad nauseam. But, proof of a baseball pudding is in the playing and that a poor attack has been shown is simply the truth.

An outfield combination, according to modern baseball strategy, is supposed to be made up of a group of hard hitters. In games here in Florida, the Browns have had at various times Schulte, Manush, McNeely, Badgro, Gullic and Bennett in the outfield. Taken as a whole, this group has batted but .255. The rest of the team, consisting of infielders, pitchers and catchers, has batted all of .241.

It has been stated that the Browns, as made up, are a good defensive club. Again, the figures, the outfield to date has made but one error in 76 fielding chances which gives that department a defensive mark of .986. The infielders, catchers and pitchers are not far behind as they have made but five errors in 318 chances—a percentage of .984. These fielding marks are all that could be desired, as they are probably 15 points better than the marks will be at the end of the approaching season.

Pitching Has Been Good.

But the batting averages leave much to be desired as they would have to be 40 points better to assure the club going anywhere in league competition.

Base running? The Browns have stolen seven times, three times in that 22-2 horror defeat they inflicted on the Milwaukee club at Fort Pierce.

Pitching? Excellent all the way as the figures show. Considering the work done by the eight men who probably will make up the regular pitching staff for 1930 (with the probable addition of George Blaeholder, as yet unsigned), it is found that Gray, Crowder, Stewart, Ogden, Holshouser, Coffman, Kimsey and Caldwell have held the opposition in 10 games to 17 runs—less than two a game and to 59 hits in 310 times at bat. This is an opposition batting average of .190—no figure at which to carp.

It all comes back, then, to the offense. The fielding is great, the base-running good enough and the pitching really remarkably good. Why isn't the team hitting? Which players have been holding their own and which have fallen down?

Can This Be True?

Again, the good old figures, write 'em down, write 'em down. Lu Blue has been humming along at a .375 rate but is not the leader who turns up in the veteran, Frank O'Rourke, not counted on to play regularly once the season is under way. At bat once more than Blue, Frank has batted exactly .400 with 10 hits in 25 times up. Bennett, up only 13 times, has batted .385 with some fluky singles helping out but Morris "Red" Badgro regularly employed in exhibitions, has the fine mark of .357 to his credit. Roetz, slated for release, is over the dividing line with a mark of .313. Manush, up but six times, is batting .333 and Kress, 10 times up, is an even .300. That ends the list of the .300 batsmen.

Fred Schulte, after hitting .800 in his first game, has slumped down to .270. Ted Gullic, robbed several times by great catches of opposing fielders, has only .195 to show for his work. Oscar Melillo made only one hit in his first 13 times at bat and has not improved a bit for he has made but 3 in 31 chances and can show only .097. Sammy Hale, known to be a very poor spring hitter, has conclusively proved the truth of his case by hitting only .143 with four hits in 28 times at bat.

Rick Ferrell has hit probably what he will continue to hit throughout the season, .270, while Clyde Manion has three hits and a .375 record, but has been up only eight times.

One New Player Added.

One player has been added to the St. Louis roster since the team came south—Joe Hassler, purchased from the Baltimore club. He probably will add to the defense—already good—but not to the offense—decidedly bad.

Brownie officials will tell you that they are willing to get any player who will help, but add, "Where are they?" The reply that suggests itself is "They are where the other clubs seem able to get them."

"Where will the Browns of 1930 finish?"

Here are the ingredients: Figure it out for yourself: First-class pitching, a tight defense, mediocre base-running and an attack which, if present at all, has been cleverly camouflaged.

Where should such a team finish?

Dallas Five and Sparklers Play For Girls Title

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., March 29.—Feminine basketball's most coveted honor—a National A. A. U. championship—will be sought tonight by the Sunoco Oilers, defending titleists from Dallas, Tex., and the Sparklers of Sparkman, Ark., who will meet in the final encounter of the national tournament here.

One-point victories in the semi-finals last night gave both teams their final berths. The national champions triumphed over their city rivals, the Dallas Cyclones, 29 to 28, while the Sparklers nosed out the Randolph College Kittens of Cisco, Tex., 28 to 27.

Cardinals May Carry 3 Extra Outfielders; Tampa Game Is Off

By J. Roy Stockton.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 29.—Outfield candidates will be given a thorough test in the remaining exhibition games on the Cardinal schedule and by the time the Red Birds are ready to depart for St. Louis, Manager Street will have selected two or three extra fly chasers to remain on the Red Bird roster.

Street indicated last night that he might carry three reserve outfielders, chiefly because it would be difficult to choose, if it were possible for him to keep only two.

Homer Peel, Walter Roettger and George Watkins are favored at this time to remain with the club. Roettger's ankle, which handicapped him all of last year, apparently is almost as sound as ever and with each week of exercise Walter shows more speed and agility. Last year when Roettger raced in to meet a bounding hit he had to do all the reaching with his arms. He could not flex the leg which had been injured and the result was that his defensive value was greatly reduced. Now he occasionally favors the injured leg, but it is the exception instead of the rule.

"Don't see how we can keep that boy off our ball club," said Manager Street as Walter went through his paces in the team's last workout. "He's hitting the ball hard and I believe he's going to be almost as good as they say he was in 1928 before his injury."

Street Likes Homer Peel.

Street has also expressed a liking for Homer Peel, who was obtained from the Phillies in the Alexander deal. Peel was with the Phillies in 1928 and 1929, but he suffered a fractured ankle in 1928 and the next year an appendicitis operation put him out for most of the season. This year he has shown such a powerful punch that he is regarded as a valuable man if carried only for pinch hitting services. Then he is a fielder of some polish and he could be dropped into right or left field without decreasing the team's defensive strength.

George Watkins lacks the fielding skill of Roettger and Peel, but he is a left-handed hitter, packs a powerful wallop and undoubtedly will be carried along for a thorough test in fast company. If he shows that he can hit the big league pitching there will be a tendency to overlook his need for more experience on the defensive.

Branch Rickey suggested to Manager Street that John "Pepper" Martin be converted back to an infield job. Pepper started with the Cardinal organization as an infielder, but his arm was so powerful that he soon had stone bruises on the hands of all the other men on the inner line of defense and he had to be shifted to the outfield. Martin is a great baserunner, an unusual hustler and with a little coaching he could play almost any position. If he could hit .330 he'd never be waived out of the league. However, Street does not want to depend on an inexperienced man in case of accident to one of the infielders.

Manager Not Convinced.

Speaking of the infield, Manager Street told the writer last night that he was not at all convinced that the combination used in the last few games was his best bet.

"I'll give it a thorough trial, but I'm inclined to believe I'll have Frisch back at second and Andy High at third," Gabby declared. "The more I see of my ball club, the more I am inclined to think that we'd be foolish to start the season without Andy High in the regular lineup. He's a pretty sweet fielder, as well as a great spring hitter, and I believe we'll have him in there at third this season until he shows signs of faltering.

"Watch him next time he plays third. He's in front of every ball, and he bobs up with plenty of hot ones. Those that get by Andy will whistle past most any third baseman. No, sir, I'm not at all convinced that I want to change my infield around permanently."

Tampa Contest Called Off.

The Cardinals will have to go through the balance of their Florida spring training without any games with big-league opposition. The contest scheduled with the Phillies yesterday was washed out. The game scheduled with Tampa today also was postponed. The Smokers will furnish the opposition tomorrow.

MICHIGAN BOY, 3-5 FAVORITE WINS IN DERBY

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 29.—Michigan Boy, the keen 3-year-old of J. L. Pontius of Detroit, yesterday won the $10,000 Louisiana Derby, but paid the backers only 60 cents to a dollar in the mutuels.

The muddy Jefferson Park course made the Michigan horse a favorite over Bad News Bob and Brother Rank, the two entries of H. C. Hatch of Chicago, and favorites for a fast track. The winner trailed along under restraint close behind Bad News Bob and Judge Dixon until the half-mile turn, where Jockey J. Shelton let him have his head.

Taking the lead quickly, he held off the challenges of Bad News Bob and Brother Rank to win by two lengths. Bad News Bob finished second and a tiring Brother Rank came in third. Col. Bell took fourth place, four lengths ahead of Byproduct, then Gen. Jackson, Cabildo, Judge Dixon and Eli Weir. Dabster and Reveille Boy were scratched.

Michigan Boy brought his owner a purse of $9225. The race was run under heavy clouds with intermittent showers before a comparatively small crowd.

Hyde Parks Meet Chicago Quintet In Title Series

Hoping to even up the count in the annual intercity series with the Chicago Church champions as well as to gain revenge on the team which last Saturday stopped their winning streak of 22 consecutive games, the Hyde Park Congregationals will meet the Irving Parks of Chicago at the Downtown "Y" at 9 o'clock tonight. A preliminary between Bethany of Chicago and Kingshighway Presbyterian of St. Louis, runners-up in their respective leagues, will start at 8 o'clock.

Should the locals win tonight a third game will be played at Chicago next week when the locals play in the National Y. M. C. A. tourney at that city. The probable lineups:

Moles Sets New Mark in College Swimming Meet

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 29.—The pick of the nation's college aquatic stars will decide the 1930 national intercollegiate swimming championships here tonight with Northwestern University leading the qualifying teams with nine men.

A Princeton man and a Columbia man broke intercollegiate records last night in the preliminaries. The meet dedicates Harvard's new $350,000 swimming pool given by an anonymous donor, "Alumnus Aquaticus."

Edward J. Moles Jr. of Princeton swam the 200-yard breast stroke in 2 minutes 34 seconds, breaking his own record by one second. Ray Ruddy of Columbia turned in the other record time in the 220-yard free style event with 2 minutes 17 3-5 seconds, only inches ahead of Austin Clapp of Stanford, who also broke the former record.

The intercollegiate mark of 24 seconds in the 50-yard free style swim was equalled twice by Capt. Al Schwartz of Northwestern.

The number of men qualified by the other colleges are: Princeton and Stanford, six each; Columbia and Rutgers, four each; Pennsylvania, three; Minnesota and Brown, two; Dartmouth, Iowa; Springfield, Fordham and McGill one apiece.

DOWNTOWN Y. M. C. A. ELIMINATED IN STATE BASKETBALL TOURNEY

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 29.—Sedalia Y. M. C. A. staged a last minute rally to win a chance in the finals of the annual Y. M. C. A. State basketball tournament in Rothwell gymnasium here, defeating Downtown Y. of St. Louis, 32 to 31. Kansas City easily conquered Hannibal, 24 to 12, to take the other finalist berth.

The Sedalians trailed throughout the semi-final game until the last few minutes when a driving finish pulled them a point into the lead with less than a minute to play.

ED WALSH SHOWS A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT

By the Associated Press.

MERIDEN, Conn., March 29.—A slight improvement was noted yesterday in the condition of "Big Ed" Walsh, former White Sox pitching ace, who is seriously ill at the Meriden Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis and peritonitis.

Walsh passed "a fairly good day," it was reported at the hospital. Dr. I. R. Otis, his surgeon, said last night that "everything is very satisfactory so far."

STEIN FAILS TO STAR IN A. B. C. TENPIN TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., March 29.—In spite of the fact that over 1800 teams have already competed in the thirtieth annual American Bowling Congress tourney in session here, it is an even bet that the 2959 high count will be bettered on tonight's schedule.

Included on the card are some of the classiest lineups of the country. Several teams, including the Milwaukee Journals and the Chicago Mineralites have averaged better than 2940 for the past four years. It is seldom that the national tourney offers such an abundance on one day's card. Besides the Milwaukee Journals and the Chicago Mineralites, the Lamabana Cigars of Minneapolis, the Ziegler Chocolates of Milwaukee, the A. J. Cermaks, Case-Moody Pies and Commodore Barry, all three from Chicago, and four Mound City entrees the Melcher-Schene hardwares, the Witter Razz, North Side Y. M. C. A. and South Side Chevrolet of St. Louis, are booked. Many national tourney fans are predicting that the 3000 figure will be topped during the evening's bombardment.

Stein Loses His Title.

Otto Stein Jr. relinquished his all-events title yesterday. The star St. Louis pinster, who captured the nine game title last year at Chicago with a 1974 total, was unable to hit any kind of a real pace in his double and single events. Paired with Pat Spencer, Stein contributed only 565. Spencer gathered a 538 count and the pair topped the Mound City bowlers carded with a total of 1103. Stein was unable to find the "pocket" in his singles workout, scoring games of 177, 189 and 178 for a 544 count. He started his all-events chase with a 626 score in the team division.

Pat Spencer's 642 topped the St. Louisans scheduled in the singles. Spencer's big hook spilled the maples for 214, 192 and 232 for a 642 mark.

Two Clevelanders crashed among the first ten in the singles class, for the only two changes in the minor events. Lawrence Drotloff, starting with a 60 or 175 game, wound up with 254 and 267 counts to total 696, which landed him fifth place. John Med turned in 229, 203 and 254 games for a 686 total and ninth place.

Naishapur, which shares the honors of favoritism and the Agua Caliente Stable's Scimitar, winner of last year's cup stake, are in with 114 pounds.

LELAND AGAIN DEFEATS BRACY IN 100-YARD DASH

By the Associated Press.

OWNBY STADIUM, Dallas, March 29.—Despite the fact he was set back a yard at the start, Cy Leland of Texas Christian University came up to defeat Claude Bracey of Rice Institute by at least five feet in the 100-yard dash at the Southern Methodist University relays today. Leland's time in a hard cross wind was 9.6 seconds, a tenth of a second less than his time in the Texas relays.

With his advantage at the start, Bracey held the lead until past the half-way mark in today's feature, but Leland forged ahead with some 25 yards to go and was increasing his lead rapidly at the tape. The track was perfect.

"Red" Oliver, Leland's teammate at Texas Christian, was third, less than a yard behind Bracey. Today's victory marked Leland's third straight over Bracey in the Century this month.

In the four-mile relay a Butler University quartet set a new meet record of 18:20.1 in beating Nebraska runners. The Oklahoma Aggies team finished third.

Sentman of Illinois captured the 220-yard low hurdles in 23.4 seconds to set a new meet record.

The summaries:

440-YARD RELAY—Kansas University, first; Missouri and Texas Christian tied for second and third; Illinois, fourth. Time, 42.5.

SHOT PUT—Behr, Wisconsin, first; Bausch, Kansas; Rider, Oklahoma; Rhea, Nebraska. Distance, 46 feet 9 inches.

FOUR-MILE RELAY—Butler, first; Nebraska, second; Oklahoma Aggies, third. Time, 18:20.1 (new record).

DISCUS—Thornhill, Kansas; Mitchell, Baylor; Farmer, Texas A. M.; Nebraska. Distance—134 feet, 2¾ in.

100-YARD DASH—Leland, Texas Christian; Bracey, Rice Institute; Oliver, Texas Christian. Time 9.6.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 29.—The Southwest's greatest sprinter, Cy Leland, of Texas Christian University, yesterday proved his right to the title by defeating Claude Bracey, the Dixie flier, a full two yards in the 100-yard dash, feature of the sixth annual Texas University relays, here. Leland's time was 9.7 seconds.

Three watches caught him at 9.6 and three at 9.8. Henry F. Schulte of Nebraska University, official referee, announced tonight that the official record would show a time of 9.7s., adding "that was wonderful time against the wind."

It marked the second time in a fortnight that Leland had shown his heels to Bracey. He distanced his rival in the 100 and 220 yard events two weeks ago at Fort Worth.

A stiff wind faced the two stars and the track was damp from rains. They were away together, but Leland jumped into a two-foot lead at the halfway point and was pulling away at the finish. Treps of Marquette University broke the tape third, a yard behind Bracey.

Leland's time in the century was two-tenths of a second slower than the relay record of 9.5 set last year by Bracey with a wind at his back. The furlong was not included on today's program.

More than 1000 university, college and high school athletes participated in the carnival. Three meet records fell by the wayside in the university division.

Marquette's great relay team set a new meet mark in the university medley with a time of 10 minutes 23 4-5 seconds.

JENNINGS NINE BEATS WEBSTER, TO OPEN SEASON

Coach Gaines' Webster Groves High School baseball team, after only two days of regular practice, met the Jennings High nine of the County League on the Webster diamond, yesterday afternoon, in the first game between county high schools, and lost, 5 to 2.

Hudson, the veteran Webster hurler, lasted all of the seven innings, and after the game he declared his arm was in fine shape. He allowed Coach Pollack's batters only four hits. The first of these was in the third inning, by Bamber, who, when Hudson sent a low, straight ball over the plate hit it over the fence in center field for a home run. Emnett was the next man who penetrated the mysteries of Hudson's curve ball. After making a single, he stole three bases, his steal at home being made possible by Hudson's slow windup.

Jennings Wins in Sixth.

In the sixth frame, Jennings gained their three winning runs. Bamber, the first man up, singled; Hartwig walked, but Andrews sacrificed. Emnett also gained a pass, and with two down, Kercheval hit a single to bring all three men in.

Frank Kercheval, the Jennings pitcher, was first hit in the second inning, when Clark Honig, on his first trip, swatted a double; however, the next three men went out. Capt. Schutz hit a hot double through short, bringing in "Red" Barrie, who had walked, in the next inning. Charlie Haywood made two singles, one in the fourth and one in the seventh. His first one brought in Nisbet.

MARCH BUSINESS UP TO THAT OF FEBRUARY

Eighth Federal Reserve District Report Shows Purchasing on Conservative Bas's.

Business in the Eighth Federal Reserve District during March about maintained the rate of February, although the aggregate volume of production and distribution of commodities was considerably below the volume of March, 1929, and March, 1928, according to the monthly review issued by the Federal Reserve Bank here today.

Purchasing was on an extremely conservative basis and confined principally to immediate requirements, said the review, with a general disposition on the part of merchants and the public to postpone commitments as long as possible, particularly in the rural areas which have been effected by sharp declines in commodity prices.

February retail sales in St. Louis were 3.9 per cent below those of the previous February. For the first two months this year they were 6.9 per cent below the same period of 1929.

The iron and steel industry reflected unevenness and mixed conditions. Ordering of iron and steel by railroads was in smaller volumes. The outlet through the building industry was smaller than during the last several months, but some improvement was noted in requirements of automobile manufacturers.

A large majority of wholesale lines recorded decreases in February under those of the corresponding month of 1929, but gains and losses as compared with January were about evenly divided. Mild February weather had a quieting effect on the bituminous coal industry. Distribution of automobiles, tractors and farm implements showed gains.

Railroads reported a smaller volume of freight traffic during February than in any corresponding month since 1927. The St. Louis Terminal Railway Association interchanged 194,531 loads in February against 208,059 loads in January. Barge tonnage between St. Louis and New Orleans was 75,000 in February against 75,739 in January and 109,419 in February, 1929.

$68,000 JUDGMENT GIVEN J. A. WORTHINGTON ESTATE

Suit Over Condemnation of Site for Koch Hospital Addition in Court Since 1922.

A jury in Circuit Judge Nolte's court at Clayton yesterday returned a verdict of $68,000 and $9656 interest in favor of the estate of James A. Worthington, an insurance agent, in a condemnation suit by the City of St. Louis to obtain the Worthington homestead of 105 acres in the southern part of St. Louis County as a site for an addition to Koch Hospital.

The suit was filed by the city Oct. 26, 1922, and a board of commissioners appointed by the late Circuit Judge John W. McElhinney awarded the Worthingtons $45,225. In an appeal from the commission's ruling, the Worthingtons obtained a verdict of $85,000 from a jury in Judge McElhinney's court. On the filing of motion for a new trial, Judge McElhinney suggested both parties agree on a reduction to $65,000 but there was no agreement and a new trial was ordered, the Supreme Court sustaining the order on appeal by the Worthingtons.

COMMUTES DEATH SENTENCE BECAUSE OF DOUBT OF GUILT

Gov. Roosevelt Saves Man Whom He Once Reprieved 15 Minutes Before Execution Time.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 29. — Fred W. Edel's death sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment, Gov. Roosevelt announced today. Edel was to have died next week in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison after four respites granted by the Governor. He was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Guy Harrington, New York and Bingham actress.

The commutation was granted, the Governor explained, because "all the circumstances surrounding this case have not satisfied me that the conviction is so free from all element of doubt that this man should be put to death." He said the facts had presented a "most puzzling" situation. He added he hoped the investigation for definite proof of innocence would continue.

One of the four reprieves granted Edel arrived a bare quarter of an hour before the convicted man was to have started his march to the death house.

Mrs. Emma Harrington was found beaten to death in her upper West Side apartment in New York City Dec. 29, 1927. A missing fur coat and some letters addressed to her were found in a room in New Haven, Conn., which police said had been occupied by Edel. Edel had been acquitted in 1926 of a killing in Meriden, Conn. He was arrested in St. Paul, Minn., three months after Mrs. Harrington's death.

Woman Hunger Striker on Bond.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 29.—Madame Marthe Hanau, who today abandoned a hunger strike she had been maintaining for the last month in jail, was ordered released on bail of $32,000 this afternoon. She had carried on the strike in protest against long delay of her trial on charges growing out of financial projects centered about her paper, the Gazette du Franc.

WOMAN GETS $25,000 VERDICT AGAINST LIBERTY MAGAZINE

Federal Jury Returns Judgment for Widow of Son of Gen. Sam Houston.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 29.—Judgment of $25,000 was awarded yesterday to the widow of Temple Houston, picturesque figure of Oklahoma's pre-statehood days and son of Gen. Sam Houston, the "Texas Liberator," by a Federal District Court jury which held that she was injured to that extent by a biographical sketch of her husband published by Liberty Magazine.

Mrs. Houston had asked $200,000, and suits against Liberty Weekly, Inc., by four children, still pending, ask an additional $400,000. The suits charge the characters of both Temple Houston and his father were libeled by the sketch, particularly that part referring to Temple Houston as born of an aboriginal marriage.

Attorneys for the magazine announced they would appeal.

The magazine article stated that Temple Houston, one-time Texas State Senator and for 10 years a resident of Oklahoma, was the son of Sam Houston by an Indian mother.

Don Sietz, writer of the article, admitted he erred as to Houston's birth. He denied the sketch was written with malicious intent.

SCARFACE AL SENDS REGRETS

CHICAGO, March 29.—Alphonse (Scarface Al) Capone, gangster, has sent his regrets in reply to the invitation by the Rapid City (S. D.) Chamber of Commerce, to become a resident of that city. As soon as Rapid City's invitation became known, Gov. Bulow announced: "We don't want Capone or any of his kind in South Dakota."

The Tribune quotes Capone as saying he appreciated the invitation but would save the Governor the trouble of trying to keep him out of the State as he had "no desire to live in the Black Hills."

AUSTRALIAN STATE REJECTS WHEAT MARKETING PLAN

the Associated Press.

CANBERRA, Australia, March 29.—Australia's proposed wheat marketing pool under Government auspices has received a setback, due to the decision of the State Government of Tasmania not to join the pool.

The exact effect of Tasmania's defection cannot be known until official advices have been received from the remaining governments. It is believed most of the states are willing to join the pool. Premier McPhee of Tasmania said that state would neither join the pool, arrange the guarantee of about $1 per bushel of wheat, nor accept the joint responsibility for possible loss.

The scheme of a compulsory wheat marketing pool acting under a Federal board with boards in each state, based on a Federal guarantee of $1 a bushel for wheat at country sidings, was put forward at a great gathering of commonwealth and state representatives and representatives of wheat growers and wheat associations recently.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW

NEW YORK, March 29.—Dun's Review today says:

"The week which has practically closed the first quarter of the year has been marked by a better business tone in certain respects, yet without any broad stimulation of activity. Response to the change in seasons lacks a full development and has been retarded lately by a blizzard in Central West, and low temperatures in some other sections, but the tenor of different advices is becoming more cheerful as spring progresses. Actual gains in trade, although not widespread or emphatic, are now rather more plainly visible, with textiles, hides and allied products, and some of the metals participating in varying degree in the improvement. The unsatisfactory aspects of the three months' period now ending, the slowness and irregularity of the recovery, and the conflicting reports of trends have not obscured the underlying factors pointing to ultimate revival, yet a rapid advance is scarcely to be expected after severe economic disorganization. Readjustments which continue uncompleted naturally impede the process of recuperation, but some of the more recent movements have indicated that a stronger basis for subsequent betterment is being gradually attained."

Weekly bank clearings $11,339,732,000, a decrease of 16.7 per cent from a year ago.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, March 29.—The raw sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 3.64 for spots with no sales reported.

Raw futures were quiet with price changes narrow and unimportant and operations mostly in the way of evening-up for over the week-end adjournment. The market opened unchanged to 1 point lower under liquidation and a little commission house selling which may have been prompted by the disappointing London cables, but the offerings were not aggressive, and there was enough covering and trade support to hold values and cause partial rallies with the market closing 1 point lower to 1 point net higher. Approximate sales 10,800 tons, including nearly half in the form of exchanges. There were no transactions in the No. 1 contract. Closing prices No. 2 contract: May 1.78, July 1.82, Sept. 1.88, Dec. 1.95, Jan. 1.96, March 2.00; No. 2, July 3.69, Sept. 3.78, Dec. 3.86.

Refined was quiet and unchanged at 5.00 for fine granulated and resales available at 4.80.

Sugar futures closed steady; approximate sales 10,800 tons. May, $1.78; July, $1.82; September, $1.88; December, $1.95; January, $1.96; March, $2.00.

WHEAT CLOSES HIGHER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 29.—Wheat closed 1c to 1⅝c higher today influenced by strength of Liverpool and tone of recent reports on moisture situation in parts of winter wheat belt.

May wheat opened at $1.08, July wheat $1.05½, September wheat $1.07⅛. May corn 85c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 46,200 bushels, compared with 37,800 a week ago and 187,600 a year ago included 30 cars local and three through. Corn receipts, which were 77,000 bushels, compared with 47,600 a week ago and 317,800 a year ago, included 41 cars local and 14 through. Oats receipts, which were 61,000 bushels, compared with 61,600 a week ago and 184,800 a year ago, included 23 cars local and five through. Hay receipts were six cars local and three through.

WHEAT CLOSES UNSETTLED AND HIGHER AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 29.—Forecasts that there would be no general rains next week furnishing any adequate relief from drouth hoisted wheat prices afresh today toward the last. Reports that quotations on Canadian wheat offerings abroad had been advanced counted also as a bullish influence. A leading trade authority in Chicago estimated the present condition of the United States winter wheat crop as 81.7 per cent, compared with 82.7 a year ago.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝@1⅝c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅜@⅞c off. Oats varying from ⅛c decline to ⅜c advance, and provisions unchanged to 12@15c setback.

Persistent lack of grain in drought districts Southwest together with advancing quotations at Liverpool led to fresh upturns in Chicago wheat prices early.

Opening unchanged to 1⅛c-1¼c higher, Chicago wheat futures made all-around upturns later. Corn and oats were also firmer, with corn starting at ⅛-⅝c advance, and afterward holding near to the initial range. Provisions tended to sag.

Report also at hand indicating the Canadian prairie provinces and the American spring wheat states as well were entering the planting season with inadequate moisture. Notice also was taken of comment that although domestic visible supplies were unusually large, the total was decreasing faster than last year despite slowness of export business.

Friends of higher prices for wheat had things virtually their own way until July advanced to around $1.09. At that figure, however, offerings increased, and the market showed some wavering, especially as at the same time it appeared that export call for North American wheat today was failing to develop any big volume. Nevertheless, a good inquiry for United States hard winter grades was said to be in evidence.

LOUIS BERETTI--Gangster

By Donald Henderson Clarke

Author of "In the Reign of Rothstein"

The galloping story of the career of a juvenile enemy of the law--Born in the throes of a Chinatown battle, successively thief, dope peddler, bootlegger, gunman, Louis finally turns on his "mob" and crashes the front page as the heroic avenger of society in a sensational kidnaping.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

LOUIS BERETTI, born in the turmoil of a battle in the streets of New York's Chinatown, grows up as a boy with an antipathy to policemen, school teachers and "snitches." His pal is Big Italy. Louis begins life as a thief in a small way. When the war comes he forms a friendship with Bill Pedersen, an aristocrat, who has a pretty sister, Louise. Bill is killed and, when the war is over, Louis returns home, takes up bootlegging and runs a speakeasy. Big Italy, his partner, is sent to prison for two years and Louis carries on alone. He is making plenty of money when he meets Margaret, a good-looking Irish girl, and marries her. A year later a son is born to them. Big Italy comes out of the pen and he and Louis resume their partnership. In the meantime Louise Pedersen has married a wealthy man and also has a son. This child is kidnaped and, Louis, remembering his war buddy, takes a hand in a search for the baby.

CHAPTER XVIII.

BY midnight of the first day, Teddy Hendrix of The American and Jack Gillette of The Times had joined Bill. They rode in the rumble. Louis merely drove them where they wanted to go. He had known them as customers for some time, and they didn't see anything strange in his being up there with his car. Nobody did.

He had driven Bill first to Police Headquarters, then to newspaper headquarters, and then to the house. Afterwards, he sat in the temporary telegraph room in a freight building next to the railroad station, while the newspaper men sweated over their typewriters, and the expert code operators bundled their stories over the Wires which ran straight into the various newspaper offices. "Loops" these straight connections were called.

"Get me a loop," from any correspondent was the signal that he had enough of a story done to get it going on its way to the front page.

Louis was mightily interested in the proceeding.

"They send commas, periods and everything, don't they?" he said to Penwhistle.

"They have to. It all goes press rate, and no abbreviations are allowed," Penwhistle said. "But these men sending here, and the men in the offices at the other end, are all experts, and they send it in code. They can send it just as fast as it can be typed at the other end.

After the stories all had been sent, except the one to the Tribune which was delayed because Hemple, of that newspaper, still was trying to write a new lead at midnight, the reporters all went back to the inn and most of them sat down for a poker game.

First thing they had done when they arrived was get acquainted with the local telephone central which happened to be two old maid sisters, the Misses Nancy and Lily Nash. When they got through with the Misses Nash they knew that the Misses Nash thought they were fine, noble, hard working and generous young men, and that no news connected with the kidnapping would go over the telephone wires without one of the Misses Nash calling them.

LOUIS sat in the poker game, which was a dollar limit, with rangdoodles. That is when some player held a full house or better, the limit was doubled. The newspaper men were good players, and Louis just trailed along a few dollars winner or loser. It didn't matter to him. His thoughts were elsewhere.

"Why the hell am I up here, anyway?" he thought. "Of all the damned foolish things I ever did, this is the worst. What the hell can I do?"

But he listened to the shop talk of the reporters, which broke out spasmodically between pots. A Polish gardener who had been discharged by Boonton three months before was being held at the local jail.

"He's a dumb bird," Teddy Hendrix, who now had joined the crowd, said. "Of course we had to play him up in the stories tonight, but I don't believe he knows a thing about it. I talked to him myself with Chris Mixer for an hour, and we decided he was just a plain fathead. But the old Chief said he was expecting important developments, and so I had to write one of those important development stories with the poor Polack as the foundation for it."

"My three detective reporters are out looking for exclusive angles now," Bill O'Brien said, grinning. "I hope one of 'em brings us a new lead for tomorrow."

"My office has Jim Sinker working on some clew in town," Teddy Hendrix said. "They told me over the telephone that they have something big up their sleeve."

When the poker game broke up about daylight, Bill and Louis went to their room, furnished with twin beds, which they had gotten only because of arrangements made by the local correspondent for Bill's newspaper.

"Listen Bill," Louis said.

"I'm listening," Bill told him.

"This business ain't in my line," Louis continued, "but I've got an idea from listenin' in on you guys talk today."

"What is it?" Bill asked. "You're a wise guy, Louis, and if you've got an idea it might be worth somethin'."

"First," Louis said, "I want you to make an agreement that if my idea works out you won't say anything to anybody or print anything about it till I tell you."

"That's O. K. by me," agreed Bill.

"It's this way," Louis said. "This don't look to me like any job from this end. These guys out here in the country don't go sailing around in fast cars shooting up country cops—not that I've heard of, anyway.

"MY hope is that you don't see anybody else tomorrow except this guy Boonton, or see him the next day, if you can't see him tomorrow. And you find out from him if he has had any run-in with any guys in New York.

"It might be such a little guy that he had the run-in with that it didn't seem like anything to Boonton. It might be some Italian guy around his offices. There's a cop killed with steel jacketed bullets out of an army 45. There's a mob in on this, and if you ask me they're in New York right now."

"You may be right, Louis. You may be right," Bill said. "I don't like work myself, but I'll certainly have a long talk with Boonton tomorrow. Thanks for the tip."

"I hope it'll be some help to you, Bill," Louis told him.

But he was thinking he never would have shown even that much interest in the kidnaping. If he hadn't figured that he had to have someone who could talk to Boonton without exciting suspicion that Louis Beretti had any except the most casual—and drinking—interest in the affair.

"You better make that date with Boonton," Louis reminded him the next morning.

"And how I hate to," Bill replied. "I'm no good at all at this time of day. I'm scared even to talk over the telephone. I feel as if the world was tilted up on end and was about to topple over on me."

"Nuts!" Louis said. "Pull yourself together, and get on the 'phone."

Bill got on the 'phone and talked with the Boonton home, with the Boonton office in New York, and then with his own office.

"All right, Louis," he said finally. "I got a date at 3 o'clock with Boonton. You'll drive me in, huh?"

"Boonton's been interviewed to death," Bill said to Louis on the way to town. "But I told him we were working on a theory and that we had a dozen men who aren't goin' to sleep till they find out what happened to that kid, and I said I had to talk with him. And I told my office I had an ace in the hole. But I gotta get back here tonight to wire the general story."

"It feels funny to be a detective," Louis said.

WHEN they were approaching West Forty-sixth street, where the real estate firm of Boonton & Browne occupied an entire five-story building just off Fifth avenue, Bill suggested:

"I know a speakeasy in Forty-fifth street, just around the corner from where I'm going. Why don't we go in there and have a quick one, and then you can wait for me."

"O. K.," Louis said.

Bill led the way through a restaurant on the ground floor, through a kitchen in back of that, and downstairs into a big barroom, with three sweating bartenders working overtime to supply the thirst requirements of 30 or 40 customers at the bar, and scores of other customers in a cellar dining room, just off the bar.

"Angelo's place," Louis said, looking around appreciatively. "I heard of it, but I never was in it before."

A stout, red-faced man, of about 50, with graying hair bristling in a pompadour from a low, narrow forehead, asked:

"How are you today, Mr. O'Brien?"

"I'm fine, Angelo. How're you yourself? Meet my friend Mr. Beretti, who's in the same line of business. Mr. Angelo, Mr. Beretti."

"What's doing, Mr. O'Brien?" Angelo asked. "Murder or a divorce, I suppose?"

"Not this time, Angelo," Bill said. "I'm working on that Boonton kid that was kidnaped up in Westchester, but right now I'm down here to see the kid's father."

"That is very sad," Angelo said. "I know Mr. Boonton. He owned the building I had my restaurant in before this prohibition."

They had a drink of brandy, for which Louis paid.

"You go ahead, Bill," Louis said, "or you'll be late."

"We'll have one more," Bill amended. "And then I'll buzz along."

Louis and Bill had one more, but Angelo held up a protesting hand.

"If I did that all day, I would be dead by closing time," he said.

"That's why I'm always dead by closing time," Louis admitted. "I never did have any sense."

"So long," Bill O'Brien said. "I'll see you in an hour at the latest."

"What kind of a guy is this Boonton?" Louis asked Angelo.

"He is an aristocrat," Angelo said, "and he is very honorable in his business dealings."

"Couldn't have been someone that was sore at him over business then that swiped his kid," Louis said.

"I never saw anyone angry at Mr. Boonton," Angelo said. "Wait a minute," he continued. "There was one man, the bootblack who had a little stand outside of my restaurant.

"Everybody called him John, but his name is Guiseppi Vesalli. Guiseppe ran the bootblack stand, and did the porter work in my restaurant. And after prohibition he did the janitor work and ran his bootblack stand. But a chain drug store opened where my restaurant had been, and the drug store chain did not think it looked well for Guiseppi to have his bootblack stand outside, and they wanted a more up-to-date janitor than he was. So Guiseppi had to lose his stand.

"HE was very angry about it. He used to shine Mr. Boonton's shoes, and he spoke to Mr. Boonton about it. But Mr Boonton said he could do nothing except to tell his manager to see that Guiseppi got another job taking care of the boilers to some other building in the neighborhood. But Guiseppi wanted his bootblack stand. Mr. Boonton was sorry but he could do nothing about it, and when Guiseppi got excited and began to talk in Italian, he stopped seeing Guiseppi.

"Guiseppi had had the bootblack stand for 10 years, and he did not like to lose it because it made him feel like a padrone and not like a laborer. He had two chairs, and he did a good business, mostly with customers of my restaurant.

"After Mr. Boonton would not see him any more Guiseppi began to drink a great deal and get very drunk, and when he was drunk he used to say he would kill Mr. Boonton, who owned many buildings and could have let him have a little bootblack stand as easy as anything.

"But that was a year ago, and I have not seen Guiseppi since then. He disappeared from the neighborhood. I do not think Mr. Boonton ever realized how angry with him Guiseppi Vesalli was, because of course, Mr. Boonton is a reasonable man, and he could not understand how an unreasonable man like Guiseppi Vesalli could blame him for something that was none of his doing.

"Me, I think Mr. Boonton forgot all about Guiseppi Vesalli five minutes after he told the people at his office not to let Guiseppi come in to see him any more. But I do not think Guiseppi Vesalli ever has forgot Mr. Boonton, who he thinks is the man that took away from him his beloved bootblack stand."

"Did you say anything to Boonton about Guiseppi?" Louis asked.

"Ah, no," Angelo said, spreading his arms out with the palms of his hands down, and raising his bulky shoulders, and even the furrowed skin on his low forehead, in an expressive shrug. "It is not my affair, you understand, and it is only that you asked me if Mr. Boonton had any enemies that reminded me of Guiseppi Vesalli, the bootblack. Guiseppi may be polishing shoes at some other stand for all I know. It is just that it is interesting to speculate in confidence."

"Sure, Angelo," said Louis, knowing that Angelo knew a great deal of fact and fancy about him. Indeed, Louis understood that if it weren't for his own reputation for association with rather shady affairs, and his notorious discretion, Angelo would not have chatted with him about the missing bootblack. Speculation along those lines is not healthful in certain social circles of New York, some of them Italian.

"Let's have another brandy," Louis said.

"All right, Mr. Beretti," Angelo agreed, "although I do not as a rule drink brandy during business hours.

TALES THAT TABLES TELL

By Alma Zaiss

SPRING tables are not far in the distance. Can't you feel it? And what plans have you made for a series of fresh, colorful, joyful settings that shall startle the family out of their winter routine of dining and tell them that the most enchanting season of the year is here?

Have you, for instance, become acquainted with the newest cloths and napkins—or lapkins—as some of the late arrivals are called?

And did you know that such an unusual pattern as the one illustrated had been offered to the home-keeping world?

It is a gold and silver cloth of linen damask, truly typical of spring. For against a symbolic pattern of budding things, graceful, curving iris leaves unfold with an effect of golden sunlight. The inner field is bordered with a formalized pattern of full-blown flowers—a perfect background for the sterling silver in conventional tulip design.

Service plates, butter plates and goblets of transparent crystal and a golden amber shade are used instead of china and white glass. The bread tray, salt and pepper shakers and the flower bowl are all of sterling—and the contrasting color note is achieved by the bouquet of African daisies in all shades of yellow deepening to rose and a flame-like coral.

Now about the "lapkins," those ample oblong-shaped napkins which men find are more easily controlled on the knees than the usual squares—and so adore them. Usually the lapkin is about the size and shape of a guest towel—and you will discover that they are just right for smooth, slender folding when at the laundry; just right for easy unfolding when in use. The design of the linen damask is woven to conform with the changed shape, of course—and many homes are enjoying this new type of napkin immensely.

A few general notes on linens to help you in making your spring selections are the following:

The linen chest of a well-regulated household should contain two white linen damask cloths—one large and one medium; one dozen large napkins and one dozen in the smaller size.

Then there may be two colored damask sets having matched cloths and napkins, and two small linen damask cloths (either white or colored) with small napkins.

In addition to this it is pleasant to have an oblong luncheon set of five pieces and a dozen luncheon napkins to match, two tea cloths and a dozen tea napkins. This collection provides sizes and variety for daily use and a fair sprinkling of company dinners, bridge luncheons and teas for the average small family.

Kitchen Kinks

Toasted cheese sandwiches should be cooked slowly so that the cheese is thoroughly melted and not lumpy.

When making Waldorf salad in advance, mix it with mayonnaise before putting it away. You will find the apples will not discolor if mixed with the dressing as soon as cut into cubes.

A little chopped chervil is well added to potato salad.

Strawberry preserves and cottage cheese combine nicely for a sandwich filling.

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

The First Party

"OH, I'm going to turn the time way, way back this evening," began the Little Clock.

As he said this the world had its early, new look that Peggy always thought was so very strange.

There were some children playing with bits of stones for toys, while others were jumping and racing.

Then it began to grow dark, and some of the children were leaving.

It appeared as though the others could not bear to see them leave and they kept urging them to stay. And then a mother came forward and began to speak.

"What is she saying?" asked Peggy. The Little Black Clock and John and Peggy were sitting off at one side.

"Just wait a moment and I'll tell you," answered the Little Black Clock.

They waited a moment and then they saw the children of years and years ago playing once more.

"Ah! It has all been arranged," said the Little Black Clock.

"What has?" asked John.

"The mother has told the children that she will give them all some supper and that they do not have to go back to their own caves quite yet. She is going to tell their parents, too, so it will be all right.

"And what you are seeing," the Little Black Clock continued, "is the first, the very first party ever held in this world."

"How lovely," Peggy said, and she and John watched the others play. John and Peggy were not noticed by the others who were too busy with their own games.

"I'll always remember that I've seen the first children's party in the world," said Peggy.

"And I'll always remember how some of those kids can race and run," added John.

Fabrics for Hats

IT IS more interesting to note of what spring hats are made than how they are designed, for the medium is a link between costume and the general ensemble.

The effort of Patou and Agnes to raise the crown is little evident in the new models as yet, for crowns are very shallow, moulding the head smoothly, with brims sweeping in various directions from the hairline. In small hats the brim is apt to turn back sharply to expose the face. Larger brims are done in the directoire manner.

PLANTING OF CORN

AFTER the war with its enforced vegetable growing as a war measure vegetable gardening went into temporary eclipse and vegetable gardens which had dotted every small lot during the war days disappeared and gave place to flower gardens in a great majority of cases, the family gardening burden passing to the distaff side of the house.

The pendulum has now swung in the other direction and vegetable gardening is coming back to the place its importance normally deserves in the home grounds. In urban centers there is an excellent reason for abandoning vegetable gardens. This is the fine variety of fresh vegetables carried by green grocers who are numerous, the combination of fruit and vegetable store being a modern development.

With the movement toward the suburbs and the country, especially during the summer months, it is not so easy to telephone or step over to the store and make selections. The automobile has tended to make distance of much less importance than it was a few years ago.

The vegetable garden becomes a real convenience and once established it is a home utility that will not be dispensed with as vegetables to be gathered at one's own back door saves many steps, much gasoline and considerable time. In addition, there is the one unpurchasable factor of quality. No matter how well refrigerated and cared for, store vegetables cannot have the same fine quality as those gathered a few minutes before they go into the kettle and to the table.

Then, too, the home garden offers a choice of varieties which the market does not give. Market gardeners are conservative, trust to staples and productiveness is more of a criterion in selecting seeds of varieties than quality. They are slow to discard an old reliable for an improvement. For variety and quality vegetables must be grown at home.

If the vegetable garden space is small, specialize and grow those vegetables you can't buy or varieties that are not in the lists of the market gardener.

Russian Artist Paints Portrait of Mrs. Gann

A PORTRAIT of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, the first she has had made since becoming vice presidential hostess, has just been completed by Boris B. Gordon, Russian portrait painter.

The picture required eight sittings and took a month to complete. It is being exhibited at a leading hotel and will later be taken by Mrs. Gann to the hotel quarters which she and her husband share with Vice President Curtis.

Mrs. Gann is shown wearing black velvet, pearls, and a blue satin scarf over one shoulder.

It's a good time to get carpenters to make frames, cut stakes and do other odd jobs for the garden equipment while outdoor work is slack.

Hard to Wed but Easy To Divorce in Denmark

DENMARK is the most complicated country in the world for getting married, and a recent survey shows that she offers fewer obstacles for divorce than any other European country.

The formalities of certificates and declarations of one's matrimonial intent delay obtaining a marriage license, while a divorce is granted immediately if both parties agree. If the divorce is wanted only by one party, a separation of two or three years precedes the decree.

The divorce rate is increasing annually. In 1898 there were 15 divorces per 100,000 population, while in 1928 there were 66 per 100,000.

FOLLIES OF FASHION

By Marguerite Barnes

THE cape-dress or coat is to be a general favorite this spring and is becoming to almost all women if the right type is selected. For the short woman the smaller capes are suitable, but not the deep variety shown at the left. This is too near the elbows and seems to cut the figure in half. The dress on the right, with its small double cape, will be more flattering to her. These capes are circular in cut, clinging close to the arm and carrying the vertical lines upward so as to make the figure appear taller. Small cape sleeves will also give this effect.

HELPING THE SCHOOL CHILD

By Emilie Hoffman

A MOTHER strenuously objects to the teaching of domestic science in the schools. Her young daughter has now entered th grade where this branch is taught and she asks: "Will it do any good to see the teacher and tell her I do not want my girl in that class?"

She adds, "The time wasted in schools on teaching cooking, sewing and housekeeping might better be devoted to spelling and other educational subjects. It is not right to take up school time to teach homemaking. Girls can learn that in their homes."

It is quite apparent that this mother is not co-operating with the school. She will do well to leave matters as they are and to get a better understanding of domestic science as taught in our schools by keeping in touch with her daughter's progress.

It is true that girls can learn housekeeping at home, but how many do? It is quite safe to say that not many daughters cook a meal in our modern homes.

There is no part of the girl's education where the home has such an excellent opportunity to cooperate with the schools as in domestic science. Wise mothers realize that this is their opportunity to break in the girls to be helpful at home. When the young miss comes home enthusiastic about the muffins they baked in school that day, this mother will say, "Don't you want to bake a pan of muffins for dinner tonight so we can see how good they are?" Of course the family will express their satisfaction and commend the efforts of the young cook. This will encourage further attempts and the wise mother will install the daughter as her cooking assistant. There are mothers who have relegated to the school taught cooks the entire baking for the family.

One mother asserts she never knew how to make a bed properly until her daughter was taught how to do it in the class at school. Another mother was shown how to hem napkins by her young daughter, who learned this in the school sewing class.

In school the latest methods are used in cooking and the other branches of domestic science, so it is quite possible for mothers to learn something about housekeeping themselves. Therefore, instead of criticising the housekeeping methods taught in the schools mothers would do well to show an interest in the subject and encourage these eager embryo housewives by enlisting their services in the home. The girls will consider it a pleasure at first, but helping mother or assuming personal home responsibilities will become a habit, and a good habit it will prove, for most girls eventually become housewives and those educated and experienced in those duties will find homemaking no discouraging task.

A REAL BOY NEEDS A REAL ROOM

SUPPOSE he does put his feet on the bed and likes to "make things" and have "secret meetings"—that's no reason why the boy of the house should be banished to a bare and unattractive attic. A live boy needs a room in which he can live, and a little thought and very little expense can create a room in which he will delight. How to do it is explained by Mary Davis Gillies in McCall's for March:

"The boy's room should be just as attractive and carefully planned as any other room, in order to develop in him a pride in possessions and an interest in his home.

"In a typical boy's room, inexpensive beds are used and are placed at opposite sides of the room, each accompanied by a chest of drawers in order to create a feeling of independence. One feature of the room is the bench seat and book shelves around one corner. This arrangement forms an ideal study unit, and makes the storage of sporting equipment convenient as well as decorative. The radio, books and keepsakes also find a place there. The bench has a pad covered with a plain, fast-colored cotton crash and pillows of cretonne make it very comfortable. The drop light that hangs above the desk, for instance, may be a brakeman's lantern, electrified.

"Cretonne is useful for the draw curtains at the window, a leaf pattern, say, in gay yellow, red and blue, printed on a black ground. The draperies would be effective if finished with pinch pleats at the top and arranged to draw, or they might be hung with red rings from a blue painted wooden pole and should reach just to the lower edge of the apron beneath the window sill.

"The bedspreads pick up the identical colors in the draperies. They are made of a coarse-woven cotton material, fast-colored and sturdy enough to stand rough treatment. The fabric resembles a friar's cloth and is a delightful intermingling of blue, red, gold and black checks; it recalls the woven paper mats of primary school days. The beds are supplied with many pillows, forming an excellent place for the gang.

"The pine floor has been scraped, painted blue, varnished and waxed; and forms a pleasing background for the rugs and colorful spreads and draperies.

"The woodwork should be stained and waxed and the walls might be either papered or painted a deep, creamy yellow. The boys should select their own pictures; these should be changed periodically as the youngsters' interests change and expand."

Hot toasted cheese or minced meat sandwiches blend with hot coffee and are suitable for serving in the evening during cold weather.

Stunting for Deafness

MANY deaf persons will go to no end of trouble to correct their defect. And the more bizarre proposed remedy, the more appealing it seems to be.

One of the latest attempts at eafness cures is airplane stunting. he principle, if there be any beind the idea, is that in stunting here is a rapid change in altitude nd in consequence a rapid change n atmospheric pressure.

In the cases where such reme s might prove effective, there re instruments which can produce he same effects in a less sensaional, less costly and more conrollable manner.

But—and here is the rub—few ases can be cured, though some ay be helped, in this manner.

Deafness is the end result of one r more of a variety of causes. The ource of the difficulty may reside n the drum, ear bones, cochlea, or erve structure.

Necessarily intelligent treatment romising desirable results cannot e accomplished through stunting. t must be based on careful examnation and must proceed along controlled lines.

"The test of the puddin' is in the atin'," the old saying goes. And o it was in this instance. At the Newark airport there recently was arried through an experiment to est the effect of airplane stunting n deafness.

Six adults, from about 60 appliants, were selected for the test. heir difficulties were as follows: One man stuttered, another sufered middle ear disease; two men nd two women were deaf.

After the flight the stutterer was worse off. So was the middle ear case. Those deaf showed no improvement whatsoever.

This will encourage further attempts and the wise mother will install the daughter as her cooking assistant. There are mothers who have relegated to the school taught cooks the entire baking for the family.

One mother asserts she never knew how to make a bed properly until her daughter was taught how to do it in the class at school. Another mother was shown how to hem napkins by her young daughter, who learned this in the school sewing class.

In school the latest methods are used in cooking and the other branches of domestic science, so it is quite possible for mothers to learn something about housekeeping themselves. Therefore, instead of criticising the housekeeping methods taught in the schools, mothers would do well to show an interest in the subject and encourage these eager embryo housewives by enlisting their services in the home. The girls will consider it a pleasure at first, but helping mother or assuming personal home responsibilities will become a habit, and a good habit it will prove, for most girls eventually become housewives and those educated and experienced in those duties will find homemaking no discouraging task.

tern, say, in gay yellow, red and blue, printed on a black ground. The draperies would be effective if finished with pinch pleats at the top and arranged to draw, or they might be hung with red rings from a blue painted wooden pole and should reach just to the lower edge of the apron beneath the window sill.

"The bedspreads pick up the identical colors in the draperies. They are made of a coarse-woven cotton material, fast-colored and sturdy enough to stand rough treatment. The fabric resembles a friar's cloth and is a delightful intermingling of blue, red, gold and black checks; it recalls the woven paper mats of primary school days. The beds are supplied with many pillows, forming an excellent place for the gang.

"The pine floor has been scraped painted blue, varnished and waxed; and forms a pleasing background for the rugs and colorful spreads and draperies.

"The woodwork should be stained and waxed and the walls might be either papered or painted a deep, creamy yellow. The boys should select their own pictures; these should be changed periodically as the youngsters' interests change and expand."

Hot toasted cheese or minced meat sandwiches blend with hot coffee and are suitable for serving in the evening during cold weather.

Stunting for Deafness

MANY deaf persons will go to no end of trouble to correct their defect. And the more bizarre the proposed remedy, the more appealing it seems to be.

One of the latest attempts at deafness cures is airplane stunting. The principle, if there be any behind the idea, is that in stunting there is a rapid change in altitude and in consequence a rapid change in atmospheric pressure.

In the cases where such remedies might prove effective, there are instruments which can produce the same effects in a less sensational, less costly and more controllable manner.

But—and here is the rub—few cases can be cured, though some may be helped, in this manner.

Deafness is the end result of one or more of a variety of causes. The source of the difficulty may reside in the drum, ear bones, cochlea, or nerve structure.

Necessarily intelligent treatment promising desirable results cannot be accomplished through stunting. It must be based on careful examination and must proceed along controlled lines.

"The test of the puddin' is in the eatin'," the old saying goes. And so it was in this instance. At the Newark airport there recently was carried through an experiment to test the effect of airplane stunting on deafness.

Six adults, from about 60 applicants, were selected for the test. Their difficulties were as follows: One man stuttered, another suffered middle ear disease; two men and two women were deaf.

After the flight the stutterer was worse off. So was the middle ear case. Those deaf showed no improvement whatsoever.

An old-fashioned "spelling bee," with members of the Senate and House competing with Washington newspaper correspondents, will be broadcast over KWK and KMOX from 7:30 to 8:30. The contest will be staged by the National Press Club, in its auditorium in Washington.

Senator Simeon D. Fess (Rep.), Ohio, is to act as "schoolmaster." He will read words from the old blue-back Holmes speller, of which only a few copies are in existence.

The Congressional contestants will be: Senators Shortridge of California, Robinson of Indiana, Connally of Texas, Barkley of Kentucky, Ashurst of Arizona and Allen of Kansas, and Representatives Luce of Massachusetts, Howard of Nebraska, Free of California, Cooper of Wisconsin Black of New York and Abernathy of North Carolina.

As soon as it was announced that members of Congress would broadcast a spelling bee the Columbia Nit Wits got the bee in their bonnets and decided they would have a spelling bee, too. So as soon as the three-cornered match among Senators, Representatives and newspaper correspondents is concluded the Nit Wits will turn loose over KMOX and the Columbia chain and see what they can do, starting at 8:30.

INCOME TAX SECRECY A PROTECTION TO GRAFTERS

Chicago's Experience Shows Federal Records Not Now Available Would Be Great Aid in State Prosecutions.

BRIBERY CONCEALED IN MANY RETURNS

State Delaying Its Cases Hoping to Secure Evidence Through Forthcoming Tax Evasion Trials.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 29.—Official investigation of the great Chicago graft orgy, which has been in progress nearly a year and is now drawing to a close, has brought into bold relief one fact of nation-wide interest and significance. It is that the secrecy surrounding Federal income tax returns operates to protect bribe-givers and takers from successful prosecution in State courts.

Many income tax returns include items of sums actually paid or received in bribery. The practical result in these cases then is that the Government is put in the position of taxing bribes received as income and permitting the deduction of bribes paid in the course of business, as allowable expenses. But Federal officials in possession of such facts are prohibited by law from disclosing them, even to State prosecutors. Of course, the words "bribe" and "graft" do not occur in returns. Usually the term "commissions," which may be used to cover a multitude of transactions, is employed.

However, the State hopes that forthcoming trials for tax evasion in the Federal Court will make public facts which will put State prosecutors in the way of getting much valuable evidence for State graft cases.

Graft payments in Chicago during the last ten years are reported to have reached a grand total of possibly $25,000,000, and it is believed that evidence of a great deal of this corruption is imbedded in income tax returns on file here or in Washington.

11 Persons Indicted.

On April 9 United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson will be ready for the trial in the United States District Court of the first of 11 persons who have been indicted on charges of violating the income tax laws, including the evasion of tax payments on income aggregating more than $2,500,000, the claiming of illegal deductions from income, falsification of returns, the making of fraudulent offers in compromise and the refusal to supply the Internal Revenue Department with income tax information required by the law.

There are no charges of bribery or graft in the Federal indictments, but the inferences of corruption to be drawn from the Government's allegations in support of its charges in some of the cases are clear. In several of the indictments official documents filed by defendants contain evidence that income not returned was received as bribes or sums deducted from gross income were paid out as graft.

Neither District Attorney Johnson nor A. P. Madden, chief of the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Department, who directed the investigation which resulted in the indictments and which is expected to result in many more, will discuss the relation of any Federal indictment to municipal graft. They are prohibited by law from revealing except in the trial of a case in the Federal court information which comes to them through investigation of income tax returns.

How Information May Come Out.

The hope of State's Attorney Swanson is that in the trial of the Federal cases in which graft is involved the introduction as evidence of the records on which the Government bases its indictments will put him in the way of getting the evidence necessary to convictions in corresponding graft cases which he expects to bring in the State Court.

Some of the Federal defendants may believe the safer course will be to enter pleas of guilty and ac-
